SUBMITS LIST

Contributors to Roosevelt's Campaign Fund of 1904,

Nearly All the Great Railroad Interests Shown by the Records to Have Contributed to the Roosevelt Campaign Fund in Sums Ranging From $25,000 to $125,000—Perkins Turns in Enormous Fund.

COPIED FROM BOOKS OF BLISS

Washington, Oct. 19.—The mystery and uncertainty surrounding the much discussed list of contributors to Colonel Roosevelt's 1904 campaign were dissipated when Elmer Dover, former secretary of the Republican national committee, laid before the senate investigators a complete statement of contributions. This list had been copied from the books of the late Colonel Bliss, treasurer of the 1904 Roosevelt campaign, and had been laid away by Dover in Chicago to be called for in the future for the guidance of Republican campaign managers.

The presentation of this list by Mr. Dover was one of the most sensational developments that has occurred in the present inquiry. It apparently settles the controversy over the 1904 fund, which began with the Alton B. Parker charges eight years ago and has cropped out intermittently ever since. The list as submitted by Mr. Dover also tends to settle the controversy over the E. H. Harriman contribution of $250,000 in 1904.

The list shows that nearly all the great railroad interests contributed to the Roosevelt campaign fund in sums ranging from $25,000 to $125,000. It shows further that many of the big bankers of New York were giving financial support to the Roosevelt candidacy. It sets at rest doubt as to whether Standard Oil officials contributed $100,000 in support of Mr. Roosevelt and indicates that the money was never returned. The list shows that an additional $10,000 was received from H. H. Rogers, making the total given by Standard Oil officials $110,000.

Perkins Raises Big Fund.

But the most startling disclosures in the document submitted was the enormous fund contributed or raised by George W. Perkins.

Mr. Perkins, according to the evidence submitted, turned over $260,000 to the Roosevelt fund in 1904. This does not include the $150,000 contributed by J. P. Morgan & Company, or $20,000 by the International Harvester company. The list shows that, all told, at least $450,000 went to the Roosevelt fund from the so-called Morgan interests. This was about one-quarter of the entire fund raised.

E. H. Harriman, representing the Union Pacific interests, contributed $150,000; G. J. Gould of the Missouri Pacific, $100,000; the Pennsylvania railroad, $50,000; the New York, New Haven & Hartford, represented by President Mellon, at least $50,000; Senator C. M. Depew, apparently representing the New York Central interests, $100,000.

Jacob H. Schiff contributed $30,000, and he was said to have been active in collecting money in behalf of Mr. Roosevelt from other bankers in the downtown district of New York; Isaac Seligman gave $20,000; Speyer & Company, $25,000; Henry C. Frick, $50,000, and the Guggenheims, who recently have been bitterly attacked by Mr. Roosevelt, dropped $130,000 into the pot.

Medill McCormick, Progressive leader of Chicago, made a bitter attack before the committee on Chairman Hilles of the Republican national committee. The attack was afterward stricken from the record.

Discussing his campaign contributions and denying that he was connected with the harvester trust, McCormick said:

"It is difficult, in the compass of ordinary language, to compete with the testimony of character assassins and liars like Mr. Hilles, chairman of the Republican national committee, men who, by their falsehoods, incite the weak-minded to actual assassination."

COLONEL PASSES CRUCIAL PERIOD

Will Be Back in the Fight Week Before Election.

SO DECLARE HIS PHYSICIANS

Bulletins issued show that Roosevelt's pulse and temperature are normal—Patient Permitted to Sit Up and Plunge into the Campaign With His Running Mate—Will Go to Oyster Bay Next Week.

Chicago, Oct. 19.—Colonel Roosevelt passed the period beyond probable danger of septic poisoning in the wound inflicted last Monday night at Milwaukee. He will probably be removed to his home in Oyster Bay next Monday or Tuesday, and he is expected to be back into the campaign again the last week before the election. Bulletins issued by the surgeons in attendance upon him at Mercy hospital show that the colonel's pulse and temperature are normal. His improvement was so pronounced and his spirits were so high that he was permitted to sit up for the first time and to plunge into the campaign with Governor Hiram Johnson, his running mate on the Progressive ticket, who paid him a visit.

An hour later when the surgeons called the colonel did not show the least fatigue and his condition was so good that the doctors decided to omit the usual bulletin and granted him permission to sit up for an hour again.

"He looks fine," said Governor Johnson. "I told him so, and I also told him not to worry—that we are doing fine. I suggested that he be in no hurry to get away from the hospital and that he had better see that he did not spoil his chance of regaining health quickly by attempting to get up and around too soon."

The surgeons had hardly stepped in for the first examination when the colonel began to press them hard for a definite answer as to when he would be able to leave the hospital. "You don't know how lonesome this is," he told the doctors. "I don't want to do anything to undo the splendid work you gentlemen have done for me, but the time just now is very valuable and I hope you understand how important it is that I get back to work."

"We know it, colonel," replied Dr. Murphy, "but we have only one concern. When you get out of here we want you to go to all purposes a well man, or so well on the way to recovery that no set-back will be possible with reasonable care. We believe you might better lose a day or two now than a week or month later."

The colonel's answer was to name Sunday as the day he would like to depart for Oyster Bay. But the doctors said this would be impossible, and suggested that Tuesday would be a better time. Mrs. Roosevelt agreed with this and the colonel said: "Well, you are all against me, I see; so I guess all I can do is to protest vigorously every time I have an opportunity."

Colonel Roosevelt said that he expected to leave for Oyster Bay soon, and hoped to be back in the campaign making speeches again week after next. "I feel as lively as a bulldog," said the colonel.

Acquitted By Jury Of Wife Murder

MacFarland Rushes to Obtain License, But Is Refused.

New York, Oct. 19.—Allison MacFarland was acquitted in Newark of the murder of his wife, Evelyn, whom he found dead in bed a year ago when he returned from an over-night trip to New York. Death was caused by cyanide of potassium, and MacFarland was charged with having substituted the poison for a headache solution that his wife was in the habit of taking. On his first trial he was found guilty of murder in the first degree.

The latest verdict had no sooner been announced than MacFarland rushed to the office of his counsel, met there Florence Bromley, his infatuation for whom was attributed a motive for the alleged crime, and hastened with her to make application for a marriage license. The license was refused because Miss Bromley did not have with her a copy of the divorce decree which separated her from her first husband, and the pair then drove away with the word that they would postpone their wedding to some other date.

Labor Federation Elects.

Canton, O., Oct. 19.—The Ohio Federation of Labor elected the following officers: John Boll, Zanesville, president; Harry D. Thomas, Cleveland, secretary; P. J. Donnelly, Cincinnati, first vice president; Thomas Farrell, Cleveland, second vice president; August Smith, Toledo, third vice president; Joseph Smith, East Liverpool, fourth vice president.

JEROME D. TRAVERS, the new amateur golf champion of the United States, has thrice demonstrated that he is the country's greatest golfer, and an $1,000 Havemeyer trophy, emblematic of the championship, is inscribed three times with his name. The trophy, which may only be held by the winner's club as long as he is champion, is now in the custody of the Upper Montclair country club. Mr. Travers first won the championship in 1907 and repeated his victory in 1908 and 1912. He is also the holder of the metropolitan championship, carried over from the previous year's winner near New York.

RIVAL ARMIES HEADED FOR IMPORTANT PASS

Conflict May Be Fiercest of the Balkan Trouble.

London, Oct. 19.—In the mountainous country around Mustapha pass, near the frontier of Bulgaria and Turkey, the armies of the two countries are expected to meet in what will probably be the fiercest engagement of the Balkan trouble. The Bulgarians and the Turks, as soon as the formalities of war declaration were cleared, immediately headed their armies for that important pass. At the same time the Serbians are advancing their fighting men to Uskup, where another battle is expected.

The Bulgarians have already poured their troops into the frontier town of Kurtkale, facing Mustapha pass, and about 26 miles lie between them and Adrianople, the objective point of the Bulgarians, toward which their troops are driving. Both sides accuse their enemies of razing villages, killing helpless women and children and like atrocities.

There runs a rumor through Cetinje that a Turkish garrison at Baricon, consisting of some 7,000 men, slunk off in the night, deserting their fortifications, while the victorious Montenegrins pressed them in pursuit. Vienna hears that the Montenegrins have been defeated at Podgoritz and severely checked in their advance on Scutari.

Cheaper Meats For The Army

Better Beef Contracts Made This Year Than Ever Before.

Washington, Oct. 19.—Despite the fact that beef is higher than in 30 years, the United States army has just made better contracts for its meat than ever before, according to the annual report of Brigadier General Henry G. Shaw, commissary general. A great saving has been effected by buying meats for delivery at Seattle and the commissary then undertakes to distribute it to the various posts.

Nevertheless the army is feeling the "high cost of living." For the regular army ration per man there is an allowance of 24 cents. The average cost of the army ration as issued in the United States last year was 23.70 cents. In the Philippines and on transports it was slightly higher, averaging 23.95 cents.

Gary, Ind., Oct. 19.—"I guess I'm some good after all," Billy Rugh, the 41-year-old cripple, whose withered leg was amputated to save the life of a girl in a skin-grafting operation in a hospital here, spoke these words and then died. Pneumonia was said by the physicians to have been the cause of death. The girl, Miss Ethel Smith, for whom he sacrificed his leg and later his life, had been horribly burned in a motorcycle accident.

Taft To Visit Panama Canal

Contemplates a Trip to Panama After the Election.

Beverly, Mass., Oct. 19.—President Taft is contemplating a trip to Panama to inspect the canal. It is probable that after the election he will board a battleship with Mrs. Taft and leave the country for two weeks. If the trip is undertaken it will be so arranged that the president will be back in Washington in time to write his annual message to congress. If, however, the voyage can not be arranged before December, the president may go during the Christmas holidays.

Warrant Out For Former Clerk of a Fraternal Society.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 19.—A warrant was issued here for the arrest of William E. Shively, former clerk of Euclid Camp No. 32, Woodmen of the World, charging him with the embezzlement of $1,000 of the order's funds. Shively's whereabouts are unknown. August 5, clothes identified as belonging to him and Miss Ruby Carr, his stenographer, also of Cleveland, were found on the beach of Lake Erie at Put-In-Bay. The police believe Shively is still alive.

THOMAS W. LAWSON.

And now comes one, Thomas W. Lawson, of Boston, who gained more fame as the author of "Frenzied Finance", the owner of the champion trotter, Lord Derby, and the vendee of a five thousand dollar carnation than in any other manner, and weighs in with a sensational story before the campaign probe committee of the United States Senate.

Mr. Lawson has been one of the most conspicuous figures of the time, and must be conceded to be a man of great mental brilliancy. His writings have no equal as "thrillers" in American literature. Possessed of a style absolutely his own, familiar with a subject which has been Greek to all Americans except a favored few, Lawson has made the most of his gifts and his opportunities so far as gaining notoriety is concerned.

Mr. Lawson avowed no end of good intentions toward the American people and after he had educated the country by his writings came forward with his plan to "bust the system". That plan involved the contribution by the people of a vast sum made up of small contributions and with this sum, Lawson was to go down into that mysterious place, Wall Street, beard the lion in his lair and bankrupt the financiers by beating them at their own game.

Perhaps it would have worked, but Lawson was a newcomer in the field of reform. He was but lately come out of the pit and was vague and uncertain as to facts and methods. The people doubted either his ability or his sincerity, it matters little which, and refused to place in Lawson's hands the sinews of war.

Lawson became disgusted and after delivering a tirade against the people went back into the pit and played the game of fleeing the people.

He has prospered because he is able and energetic and understands the game.

Now he tells the committee of the Senate an astounding story of the part Frenzied Finance played in the last pre-convention campaign. Hands the committee a few jolts, and charges incompetency, gives the ultimate facts of corruption and remains mum as to details.

Those details are just what the committee and the country would like to know. The ultimate facts they have from others and have suspicioned for a long time before their existence was positively known.

But Lawson clothed these ultimate facts in a new garb, presented them in a Lawson way, and in spite of the fact that the committee and the nation knew all that Lawson told them, they gasped with amazement.

The opportunity was too promising for Mr. Lawson to spring into the limelight to be allowed to slip.

Some day Tom Lawson may get down to brass tacks, cut out the spectacular and perform a real patriotic service directly from the shoulder. Take the people into his confidence and work, not show.

Evidently he has not yet concluded, interesting as his tale is, to do a real good. Turn over the package without any drawback string attachment.

In the meantime America looks at and admires Tom Lawson. He is in a class by himself as an entertainer at least. Maybe he will develop into more than that.

Poetry For Today

INTROSPECTION.

I.
The more I think of who I am, and where I am, and what I am,
The more I feel the gods must laugh at what a little spot I am;
An ant, a crawling thing, a tiny moving molecule I am,
And in my most exalted wisdom,
what an arrant fool I am!

II.
What finite things to infinite, the dents of Earth to sunspots are What time is to eternity, a candle flicker to a star—
So in my little puny soul to that great first Intelligence
That brought me here, and in its time shall turn the glass and send me hence,

III.
What plans I have—what work I do—what mountains I essay to move—
What thoughts I think, what arguments—what things I labor
so to prove:
What grandeur I may dream, and what as grandeur may delight
my eyes
Are tawdry trash—a rubbish heap—
My greatest truths are halting lies!

IV.
Could I create a singing bird?—a blush or odor for the rose?—
Or add a single glory to the corner where the violet grows?
O you who boast!—what is your boast?—What worthy labor have you done
That is not killed by wintry blasts nor withered by an angry sun?

V.
And so, the more I think, I see my true proportions in the glass—
And stand aside uncovered, so to let some winding cortege pass;
And so within my heart I pray for courage in the strife and stress,
And seeking strength I find it—when I look for it—in humbleness.

High Kicker Meets Disaster

Charles Willis, residing at Roxabel went to Chillicothe Friday afternoon and dropped into a saloon where he was showing the boys what a high kicker he was, using the chandelier for goal.

Willis kicked so high that both feet flew out from under him and he fell to the floor, striking the back of his head upon the foot rail around the bar and fractured his skull.

The wound had the effect of producing temporary insanity, and it required eight men to subdue him, and also eight men to hold him in the ambulance while on his way to the hospital.

WE have got to come back to the community of effort between married people. We can't return to the primitive ways and means, but we must work back to the primitive spirit of the closely wrought union. IT'S THE SEPARATION OF IDEALS AND ENDEAVOR WHICH IS THE OPENING WEDGE OF UNHAPPINESS IN MARRIAGE. For husband and for wife alike there must be the home life and the world life. THE HOME NEEDS THE MAN JUST AS MUCH AS THE GOVERNMENT NEEDS THE WOMAN.

Now, there is no bar to a man's taking as much interest as he likes in domestic affairs. And he is certainly waking up to their importance.

THAT PART OF IT IS EXCELLENT. BUT WHY SHOULD WOMEN BE HINDERED ANY LONGER FROM ENTERING THE SO CALLED "MAN'S WORLD," THE REALM OF POLITICS? FAR FROM HER ENTRANCE CAUSING DISSENSION IN THE HOME, I BELIEVE THAT IT WILL PROMOTE A GREATER HARMONY.

Politics would provide a subject of dinner table conversation. Husband and wife would be sure of one topic on which they could converse with EQUAL INTEREST. It would NEVER WEAR OUT, for it is always capable of fresh developments.

TRACKED BY POSTAGE STAMPS

Little Peculiarity, but It Meant Much to the Trained Eye of the Watchful Detective.

Whether a man is a criminal or a law-abiding citizen, he ought to take the pains to stick his postage stamps on exactly straight," an old detective said. "If he is straight he won't lose anything by it, and if he is crooked he will gain. When I was in the government service the first thing I found out about a man under suspicion was the way he stuck on his stamps. One of the cleverest swindlers I ever landed was tracked through his postage stamps.

"After you put a stamp on a certain way for a little while it becomes second nature and you stick it on that way unconsciously. That was what that man did. All his stamps were stuck on diagonally, leaving a little triangle of a certain size at the corner of the envelope. He was a slippery fellow and had eluded vigilance for months. One day I happened to be loitering around a postoffice of a country town where I had gone on another trail. The mail came in, and through the little window I watched the postmaster sort it. Presently I spotted an envelope with the stamp stuck on in that triangular fashion. I got the postmark, hiked back to that town, and nabbed my man. If he had put his stamps on straight, probably he never would have been caught."

"Mother's" Name.

A deed was being drawn for a certain farmer to sign. All went smoothly until the lawyer asked him his wife's name.

"Oh, yes, of course. My wife's name. Very necessary, to be sure," said the farmer.

It was plain to be seen that he was not prepared to answer. The blood rushed to his face, he looked troubled, and finally turned his back and looked out of the window.

"What do you think of that!" he exclaimed as he turned slowly round. "I simply cannot remember her name. You see, they used to call her Pet when she was a girl at home, and that was her name with me until two years after our marriage, when I began calling her 'mother.' I could not tell you her name if it were a capital offense not to do so. Suppose it wouldn't do to call her Pet in the deed?"

It would not do, so he hurried away, and in an hour came back with his wife's full name written on a slip of paper.—Youth's Companion.

The Hat Question in 1790.

The Handel festival was originally given in Westminster Abbey, and the official notice of 1790 announced that "no ladies will be admitted with hats, and they are particularly requested to come without feathers and very small hoops, if any." As ecclesiastical law demands that female worshippers shall cover their heads in church, this regulation was curiously anomalous. A suggestion in regard to ladies' headgear was also made by Sir Frederic Cowen in 1906, when he gave it as his opinion that the ladies might discover in their wardrobe some "extremely fascinating flat hats," which would not obstruct the view. The "fascinating flat hats" were, however, chiefly conspicuous by their absence, owing presumably (we write subject to feminine correction) to the fact that the flat hat was not among the fashions of that year.—London Globe.

CANTANKEROUS TO THE LAST

Not Even Praise of His Own Handiwork Availed to Soften Old "Uncle Jake."

"Uncle Jake" was one of the characters of Bunbury. He was as deaf as a post—when he wanted to be—and as contrary as a bundle of sticks. One of his neighbors came into his yard one day and said, "Uncle Jake, I'd like to borrow your wagon this morning; mine is having a spring mended."

"You'll have to speak louder," rejoined Uncle Jake. "I don't hear very well, and I don't like to lend my wagon, anyhow!"

The old man was an expert maker of axe helms—an occupation in which there is more art than the uninitiated would suppose—and these handles he left at the village store to be sold on commission.

One snowy day as Uncle Jake came stamping up the steps of the store, another old fellow who was known as Uncle Horace remarked to the men lounging about the stove:

"I'll treat the crowd if I don't make Uncle Jake agree to the first thing I say to him when he comes in."

"Don't be rash, Uncle Horace!" called out the storekeeper. "That never happened yet, and it isn't likely to."

But Uncle Horace merely grinned and picked up one of Uncle Jake's axe-helms. The door opened and in came Uncle Jake.

"Jake," said Uncle Horace, running his fingers up and down the smooth wood, "this is a mighty good ax handle."

"No, it ain't," replied Uncle Jake at once. "I can't make good handles, but that one you've got is the kind people want. They don't know no better!"

And Uncle Horace treated the company to sardines, crackers and cheese.—Youth's Companion.

THOMAS W. LAWSON.

And now comes one, Thomas W. Lawson, of Boston, who gained more fame as the author of "Frenzied Finance", the owner of the champion trotter, Lord Derby, and the vendee of a five thousand dollar carnation than in any other manner, and weighs in with a sensational story before the campaign probe committee of the United States Senate.

Mr. Lawson has been one of the most conspicuous figures of the time, and must be conceded to be a man of great mental brilliancy. His writings have no equal as "thrillers" in American literature. Possessed of a style absolutely his own, familiar with a subject which has been Greek to all Americans except a favored few, Lawson has made the most of his gifts and his opportunities so far as gaining notoriety is concerned.

Mr. Lawson avowed no end of good intentions toward the American people and after he had educated the country by his writings came forward with his plan to "bust the system". That plan involved the contribution by the people of a vast sum made up of small contributions and with this sum, Lawson was to go down into that mysterious place, Wall Street, beard the lion in his lair and bankrupt the financiers by beating them at their own game.

Perhaps it would have worked, but Lawson was a newcomer in the field of reform. He was but lately come out of the pit and was vague and uncertain as to facts and methods. The people doubted either his ability or his sincerity, it matters little which, and refused to place in Lawson's hands the sinews of war.

Lawson became disgusted and after delivering a tirade against the people went back into the pit and played the game of fleecing the people.

He has prospered because he is able and energetic and understands the game.

Now he tells the committee of the Senate an astounding story of the part Frenzied Finance played in the last pre-convention campaign. Hands the committee a few jolts, and charges incompetency, gives the ultimate facts of corruption and remains mum as to details.

Those details are just what the committee and the country would like to know. The ultimate facts they have from others and have suspicioned for a long time before their existence was positively known.

But Lawson clothed these ultimate facts in a new garb, presented them in a Lawson way, and in spite of the fact that the committee and the nation knew all that Lawson told them, they gasped with amazement.

The opportunity was too promising for Mr. Lawson to spring into the limelight to be allowed to slip.

Some day Tom Lawson may get down to brass tacks, cut out the spectacular and perform a real patriotic service directly from the shoulder. Take the people into his confidence and work, not show.

Evidently he has not yet concluded, interesting as his tale is, to do a real good. Turn over the package without any drawback string attachment.

In the meantime America looks at and admires Tom Lawson. He is in a class by himself as an entertainer at least. Maybe he will develop into more than that.

Poetry For Today

INTROSPECTION.

I.
The more I think of who I am, and where I am, and what I am,
The more I feel the gods must laugh at what a little spot I am;
An ant, a crawling thing, a tiny moving molecule I am,
And in my, most exalted wisdom, what an arrant fool I am!

II.
What finite things to infinite, the dents of Earth to sunspots are
What time is to eternity, a candle flicker to a star—
So in my little play soul to that great first Intelligence
That brought me here, and in its time shall turn the glass and send me hence.

III.
What plans I have—what work I do—what mountains I essay to move—
What thoughts I think, what arguments—what things I labor so to prove:
What grandeur I may dream, and what as grandeur may delight my eyes
Are tawdry trash—a rubbish heap—My greatest truths are halting lies!

IV.
Could I create a singing bird?—a blush or odor for the rose?—
Or add a single glory to the corner where the violet grows?
O you who boast!—what is your boast?—What worthy labor have you done
That is not killed by wintry blasts nor withered by an angry sun?

V.
And so, the more I think, I see my true proportions in the glass—
And stand aside uncovered, so to let some winding cortege pass;
And so within my heart I pray for courage in the strife and stress,
And seeking strength I find it—when I look for it—in humbleness.

High Kicker Meets Disaster

Charles Willis, residing at Roxabel went to Chillicothe Friday afternoon and dropped into a saloon where he was showing the boys what a high kicker he was, using the chandelier for goal.

Willis kicked so high that both feet flew out from under him and he fell to the floor, striking the back of his head upon the foot rail around the bar and fractured his skull.

The wound had the effect of producing temporary insanity, and it required eight men to subdue him, and also eight men to hold him in the ambulance while on his way to the hospital.

FACE CRUSHED IN BY STEEL-SHOD HOOF OF A RUNAWAY HORSE

Mr. Harry W. Mark, Jasper Township Clerk, Meets With Frightful Injuries in Accident Yesterday.

IS IN SERIOUS CONDITION
BUT EXPECTED TO RECOVER

Two Physicians Work Over Unconscious Man for Two Hours Before He Regains Consciousness—Is Resting Easier Today, But Suffering Is Intense.

A terrible accident took place in Plymouth, Jasper township between three and four o'clock Friday afternoon in which Mr. Harry W. Mark, clerk of the Jasper township Board of Education was seriously injured when a horse he was driving kicked him in the face and chest.

Mr. Mark had hitched up a fractious horse to take a drive and was just leaving Plymouth when the animal stopped and would not go until he used the whip. After remaining still for a few moments the horse suddenly lunged forward and commenced kicking viciously. Mr. Mark, who could not escape on account of being crippled, was struck full in the face by the steel-shod hoofs of the animal, and also in the chest, rendering him unconscious.

The horse continued to kick and the helpless man might have been killed outright had not Chas. Fichtorn run to his assistance and succeeded in stopping the horse and removing Mr. Mark from the top of the buggy, in which he had been dragged for some distance.

As soon as the injured man could be hurried to his home, Drs. Marchant and Vandeman, of Milledgeville, were summoned, and an examination disclosed that besides the face being fearfully cut and bruised, three of the bones of the face had been crushed in, making a very dangerous wound and one hard to dress properly.

His chest was very badly bruised, but no bones were found to have been fractured. After working over him for some two hours he regained consciousness, but suffered intensely from the wounds.

After a very bad night he was reported resting easy Saturday morning and it is believed he will eventually recover, although traces of the terrible wound in the face will remain for life.

Big Time Coming Tuesday Night

Tuesday night will be a memorable one in Odd Fellow circles in this city, when the big meeting recently announced will take place. Responses from neighboring lodges indicate that there will be an even larger crowd present than at first expected.

The following notice issued by the Chillicothe lodges is a sample of how the neighboring lodges are responding to the invitations:

"Temple lodge 227 I. O. O. F. of Washington C. H., has issued invitations to Numbers 24 and 80, inviting them to attend a banquet to be given at Memorial hall in that city on the night of October 22. The famous Temple Degree staff, second to none in the state, will confer degrees upon all applicants present. Grand officers from Ohio and Kentucky will be in attendance. Quite a number of brothers are going over in automobiles and return that night, while many of the older brothers will take the afternoon C. H. & D. train and return the following day.

"All wishing to take advantage of the automobile trip will call W. O. Thompson at Sears & Nichols canning factory.

$50,000 Worth Of Stock Cattle

That Greenfield is becoming one of the live stock centers of Ohio is fast becoming apparent to those who have been watching things along the line of late, says the Greenfield Journal.

On last Thursday 28 car loads of feeding cattle were received at the B. & O. depot in this city. These cattle were shipped in here by Mr. Wm. Hamilton from Virginia, and distributed among the farmers in this vicinity. This is the largest shipment of live stock ever received in this part of the state at one time.

It took an outlay of about $50,000 in hard cash to move this train load of beeves. The freight alone was about $1700. The weight of the cattle was around 700,000 pounds. We understand another large shipment will reach here in a few days.

Won't Return Woman's Purse

Unless H. M. Carroll, of West Carrollton, Ohio, returns a purse containing upward of $50 within the next few days, he will be brought to this city to show reason for not doing so.

Some three weeks ago the man picked up the purse in the Union Station in this city, and carried it away with him. Almira Turner, of Blanchester later telegraphed that she had lost a purse at the Station, and the local authorities took the matter up and will compel the West Carrollton man to return the purse or face the law for not doing so.

Artesian Well Of Sulphur Water

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Schoedinger, of Columbus, are most fortunate in that the well they had planned at their bungalow north of Williamsport is a genuine white sulphur of equal strength of that which flows from the famous spring near the bridge.

The stream tapped by Mr. C. E. Myers, who drilled the well, lies 120 feet under the surface. It may or may not be the same that feeds the spring. The flow of the spring is apparently not affected by the well. Those who have measured the flow of the well say that as near as they can estimate it, two and a half gallons of water come to the surface every minute.—Williamsport News.

FOUGHT WITH RAILROAD TRAIN

Herd of Infuriated Bulls Held Their Own in Combat With Masterpiece of Man.

At a point on the railway line between Mirabel and Canaveral, on the Spanish side of the boundary line between Spain and Portugal, there once occurred an odd sort of bullfight.

A train had just come out on a sweeping curve from the hills and down upon a little plain when the engineer saw directly before him a herd of bulls on the tracks. The engineer blew his whistle vigorously and all the bulls fled, with the exception of one great fellow, who made straight for the train with horns lowered and roaring defiance.

It was too late to prevent a collision and the bull was killed, but his carcass, lying under the wheels of the locomotive, prevented the train proceeding. Passengers and crew united to clear the track. In the meantime the great herd of bulls, scenting the blood of their dead leader, came flocking back, pawing and threatening. The nearer they came the more infuriated they grew, and finally they charged like a whirlwind on the little band of workers.

Then all the men abandoned their task and took refuge in the cars. The bulls followed them to the very steps, bellowing and pawing. Soldiers aboard the train tried to stampede the animals with stones. The bulls recoiled, charged again, recoiled once more; and for two hours the battle raged, victory now seeming to be with one side and now with the other. At last as night came on, the bulls withdrew and betook themselves to some distant shelter. Then the employes and passengers were able to set to work again. The track was cleared and the train proceeded on its way.

THIEF IS ARRESTED FOR STEALING WHEEL

"J. Smith" Nabbed in Greenfield for Stealing Dr. Pake's Wheel in Bainbridge—Probably Same Man Who Stole Wheels in This City a Few Weeks Ago.

"J. Smith," a young white man, giving this city as his residence, was arrested in Greenfield for stealing a bicycle and was taken to Bainbridge Friday to face the mayor of that town, the offense being committed there.

Smith, as he calls himself, had stolen the bicycle from Dr. Pake, of Bainbridge, and rode the wheel to Greenfield, where he disposed of it to Luther Hathaway, of Chillicothe, for the sum of $10.

As the bicycle was a fine Columbia chainless one, the suspicion of the man was aroused, and he soon discovered that the wheel had been stolen from Dr. Pake the previous night.

He went to the police and informed them of the deal, and they soon had the fellow under arrest. When he was searched a veritable arsenal was found upon him, for beside a shot gun he carried a revolver, knife, razor, file and other tools.

The money paid for the wheel was returned to Mr. Hathaway and Smith was escorted to Bainbridge to answer to the charge of stealing the wheel.

Smith may be the James Smith who was driven from town last Monday for engaging in a brawl on Broadway Saturday night. The man was originally from Greenfield, however, and would have been known.

The local authorities are of the belief that Smith may be the fellow who has succeeded in getting away with a half dozen wheels in this city during the past few weeks, and have communicated with the mayor of Bainbridge to have them to "sweat" the young man with a view to obtaining information about the jobs here.

NOT OF THE SUPERNATURAL

German Paper Gives Simple Explanation of Circulated Story Concerning the Pope.

An extraordinary story about Pius X. was recently told by a preacher in one of the churches at Innsbruck. He said that while the pope was engaged in prayer he fell into an ecstasy and rose several feet in the air. Cases of levitation—the technical word for the phenomenon—are, of course, recorded in the lives of many of the saints. If a writer in "Das Neue Jahrhundert," a journal of markedly anti-papal tendencies, is to be believed, the tale has a very simple explanation. Pius X., it appears, was working in his study, and happened to require a book from a shelf which was beyond his reach. He climbed on a chair to get it. A servant in an ante-room, from motives of curiosity, not perhaps unmixed with piety, happened to look through the keyhole to see what the pope did when he was alone. To his amazement he saw the white-robed figure of the pontiff floating a couple of feet above the floor. The fact was that between him and Pius X. stood a desk which hid the chair on which the pope was standing. It never occurred to the servant that so great a person as the pope would resort to so simple an expedient to get a book. Obviously he would summon a cardinal or a chamberlain to his aid. Hence he jumped to the conclusion that he was witnessing a supernatural phenomenon.—Manchester Guardian.

Berlin Prohibits Horse Cab.

While in most of the large cities of civilized countries the taxicab reigns practically supreme, Berlin is the first metropolis to pass a law prohibiting horse-drawn cabs from carrying fares within its jurisdiction. Such an ordinance was put in force recently and the few remaining cabbies were given notice of the death of their trade. Provision was made for the instructing of the cabbies as chauffeurs, and $150 was given as compensation for their loss of trade. This gives the taxicab drivers a monopoly, but, as the city authorities have stringent regulations covering the tolls and other matters, no trouble is expected from that source. Co-incidental with this news comes the information from London that the cab situation is so bad there that a society has been formed for the relief of indigent cab drivers who are now unable to reap a living owing to the inroads taxicabs have made on their fares.

Black Fox Farming.

There is in Prince Edward Island a new development which is attracting great attention in the shape of raising of fur bearing animals. It has been proved that the climate of the province is particularly suitable for the breeding of black foxes, and a number of farmers have embarked in the industry with the most profitable results. The fur of the black fox, owing to its rarity, has become exceedingly valuable, and the commissioner of agriculture for Prince Edward Island states that a pair of live foxes were sold recently for £5,000 and another pair for over £4,000.

The price of this spring's pups was over £2,000 a pair and £1,600 a pair, while a cash deposit varying from 10 to 25 per cent is being paid for fox cubs that are due to be born in the spring of 1913. Black fox farming, as it is called, does not entail any considerable expense, the ranches consisting usually of an acre of ground with a steel wire enclosure about fifty feet square for two pairs, containing little houses for the animals.

FACE CRUSHED IN BY STEEL-SHOD HOOF OF A RUNAWAY HORSE

Mr. Harry W. Mark, Jasper Township Clerk, Meets With Frightful Injuries in Accident Yesterday.

IS IN SERIOUS CONDITION
BUT EXPECTED TO RECOVER

Two Physicians Work Over Unconscious Man for Two Hours Before He Regains Consciousness—Is Resting Easier Today, But Suffering Is Intense.

A terrible accident took place in Plymouth, Jasper township between three and four o'clock Friday afternoon in which Mr. Harry W. Mark, clerk of Jasper township and also clerk of the Jasper township Board of Education was seriously injured when a horse he was driving kicked him in the face and chest.

Mr. Mark had hitched up a fractious horse to take a drive and was just leaving Plymouth when the animal stopped and would not go until he used the whip. After remaining still for a few moments the horse suddenly lunged forward and commenced kicking viciously. Mr. Mark, who could not escape on account of being crippled, was struck full in the face by the steel-shod hoofs of the animal, and also in the chest, rendering him unconscious.

The horse continued to kick and the helpless man might have been killed outright had not Chas. Fichtorn run to his assistance and succeeded in stopping the horse and removing Mr. Mark from the top of the buggy, in which he had been dragged for some distance.

As soon as the injured man could be hurried to his home, Drs. Marchant and Vandeman, of Milledgeville, were summoned, and an examination disclosed that besides the face being fearfully cut and bruised, that three of the bones of the face had been crushed in, making a very dangerous wound and one hard to dress properly.

His chest was very badly bruised, but no bones were found to have been fractured. After working over him for some two hours he regained consciousness, but suffered intensely from the wounds.

After a very bad night he was reported resting easy Saturday morning and it is believed he will eventually recover, although traces of the terrible wound in the face will remain for life.

Big Time Coming Tuesday Night

Tuesday night will be a memorable one in Odd Fellow circles in this city, when the big meeting recently announced will take place. Responses from neighboring lodges indicate that there will be an even larger crowd present than at first expected.

The following notice issued by the Chillicothe lodges is a sample of how the neighboring lodges are responding to the invitations:

"Temple lodge 227 I. O. O. F. of Washington C. H., has issued invitations to Numbers 24 and 89, inviting them to attend a banquet to be given at Memorial hall in that city on the night of October 22. The famous Temple Degree staff, second to none in the state, will confer degrees upon all applicants present. Grand officers from Ohio and Kentucky will be in attendance. Quite a number of brothers are going over in automobiles and return that night, while many of the older brothers will take the afternoon C. H. & D. train and return the following day.

"All wishing to take advantage of the automobile trip will call W. O. Thompson at Sears & Nichols canning factory.

$50,000 Worth Of Stock Cattle

That Greenfield is becoming one of the live stock centers of Ohio is fast becoming apparent to those who have been watching things along the line of late, says the Greenfield Journal.

On last Thursday 28 car loads of feeding cattle were received at the B. & O. depot in this city. These cattle were shipped in here by Mr. Wm. Hamilton from Virginia, and distributed among the farmers in this vicinity. This is the largest shipment of live stock ever received in this part of the state at one time.

It took an outlay of about $50,000 in hard cash to move this train load of beeves. The freight alone was about $1700. The weight of the cattle was around 700,000 pounds. We understand another large shipment will reach here in a few days.

Won't Return Woman's Purse

Unless H. M. Carroll, of West Carrollton, Ohio, returns a purse containing upward of $50 within the next few days, he will be brought to this city to show reason for not doing so.

Some three weeks ago the man picked up the purse in the Union Station in this city, and carried it away with him. Almira Turner, of Blancheater later telegraphed that she had lost a purse at the Station, and the local authorities took the matter up and will compel the West Carrollton man to return the purse or face the law for not doing so.

Artesian Well Of Sulphur Water

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Schoedinger, of Columbus, are most fortunate in that the well they had planned at their bungalow north of Williamsport is a genuine white sulphur of equal strength of that which flows from the famous spring near the bridge.

The stream tapped by Mr. C. E. Myers, who drilled the well, lies 120 feet under the surface. It may or may not be the same that feeds the spring. The flow of the spring is apparently not affected by the well. Those who have measured the flow of the well say that as near as they can estimate it, two and a half gallons of water come to the surface every minute.—Williamsport News.

FOUGHT WITH RAILROAD TRAIN Herd of Infuriated Bulls Held Their Own in Combat With Masterpiece of Man.

At a point on the railway line between Mirabel and Canaveral, on the Spanish side of the boundary line between Spain and Portugal, there once occurred an odd sort of bullfight.

A train had just come out on a sweeping curve from the hills and down upon a little plain when the engineer saw directly before him a herd of bulls on the tracks. The engineer blew his whistle vigorously and all the bulls fled, with the exception of one great fellow, who made straight for the train with horns lowered and roaring defiance.

It was too late to prevent a collision and the bull was killed, but his carcass, lying under the wheels of the locomotive, prevented the train proceeding. Passengers and crew united to clear the track. In the meantime the great herd of bulls, scenting the blood of their dead leader, came flocking back, pawing and threatening. The nearer they came the more infuriated they grew, and finally they charged like a whirlwind on the little band of workers.

Then all the men abandoned their task and took refuge in the cars. The bulls followed them to the very steps, bellowing and pawing. Soldiers aboard the train tried to stampede the animals with stones. The bulls recoiled, charged again, recoiled once more; and for two hours the battle raged, victory now seeming to be with one side and now with the other. At last as night came on, the bulls withdrew and betook themselves to some distant shelter. Then the employees and passengers were able to set to work again. The track was cleared and the train proceeded on its way.

THIEF IS ARRESTED FOR STEALING WHEEL

"J. Smith" Nabbed in Greenfield for Stealing Dr. Pake's Wheel in Bainbridge—Probably Same Man Who Stole Wheels in This City a Few Weeks Ago.

"J. Smith," a young white man, giving this city as his residence, was arrested in Greenfield for stealing a bicycle and was taken to Bainbridge Friday to face the mayor of that town, the offense being committed there.

Smith, as he calls himself, had stolen the bicycle from Dr. Pake, of Bainbridge, and rode the wheel to Greenfield, where he disposed of it to Luther Hathaway, of Chillicothe, for the sum of $10.

As the bicycle was a fine Columbia chainless one, the suspicion of the man was aroused, and he soon discovered that the wheel had been stolen from Dr. Pake the previous night.

He went to the police and informed them of the deal, and they soon had the fellow under arrest. When he was searched a veritable arsenal was found upon him, for beside a shot gun he carried a revolver, knife, razor, file and other tools.

The money paid for the wheel was returned to Mr. Hathaway and Smith was escorted to Bainbridge to answer to the charge of stealing the wheel.

Smith may be the James Smith who was driven from town last Monday for engaging in a brawl on Broadway Saturday night. The man was originally from Greenfield, however, and would have been known.

The local authorities are of the belief that Smith may be the fellow who has succeeded in getting away with a half dozen wheels in this city during the past few weeks, and have communicated with the mayor of Bainbridge to have them to "sweat" the young man with a view to obtaining information about the jobs here.

NOT OF THE SUPERNATURAL German Paper Gives Simple Explanation of Circulated Story Concerning the Pope.

An extraordinary story about Plus X. was recently told by a preacher in one of the churches at Innsbruck. He said that while the pope was engaged in prayer he fell into an ecstasy and rose several feet in the air. Cases of levitation—the technical word for the phenomenon—are, of course, recorded in the lives of many of the saints. IN SOCIETY

Brightened by a number of social affairs as has been the past week, there were none prettier nor characterized by more perfect appointments than the reception given by Miss Edith Hamm in compliment to Miss Margaret McClure yesterday afternoon.

Matrons and buds alike ignored the deluge of rain to find ample recompense in the cheer and hospitality of the home and in the charm of a bridal affair.

Miss Hamm, fair and petite, in a gown of white crepe meteor, with touch of American Beauty, gave cordial welcome. Miss McClure was wearing a very elaborate gown of American Beauty shot crepe de chene with yoke of gold net, draped bodice finished with gold lace and caught by clusters of artificial rose buds. A picture hat of white covered with plumes.

Also in the receiving line was Mrs. Martin Hamm, becomingly gowned in blue messaline, with relief of white.

The decorations were beautifully carried out in white and yellow throughout the rooms. Shaggy white and yellow chrysanthemums nodded from tall vases and clusters of marigolds filled jardiniere.

The tea table was a thing of beauty, with a gorgeous green basket of yellow chrysanthemums and smilax, the handle tied with big gauze bow, in the center, while above incandescent bulbs shed soft light through yellow flower shades and garlands of smilax.

Exquisite music of violin and piano furnished by Mr. James Kneisley and Miss Lulu Henkle throughout the afternoon enhanced the pleasure of the affair.

Assisting in the hospitalities were Mesdames Roy McClure, Earl Barnett, Horace Ireland, Misses Marie Hegler, Elizabeth Ballard, Myrtle McCoy and Ercel Stitt, of Bloomingburg.

Mrs. Martha Wilson entertained at a most enjoyable dinner Friday Hon. and Mrs. H. L. Hadley, Mrs. Will Sprenger and two children, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Cockerill, Mr. and Mrs. Will C. Slagle, Mr. and Mrs. John McFadden.

Flowers and fruit beautified the table.

Miss Lulu Theobald spent Friday in Columbus.

Mr. Carl Mallow returned from the Lexington races last night.

Miss Minetta Sharp returned last night from a visit with her brother, Mr. Ed Sharp and wife, in Columbus.

Dr. Harry Roberts is attending the O. S. U.-Michigan football game in Columbus today.

Miss Senneth Kellough is recovering nicely from her recent operation at the Hodson hospital.

Miss Jean Glascock went to Columbus today to attend the O. S. U.-Michigan football game.

Mrs. A. A. Hyer went to Columbus this afternoon to visit her daughters, Mrs. S. E. Barlow and Mrs. Lang Johnson.

Mrs. V. J. Dahl has returned from Athens where she visited friends to attend the convention of the State Federation of Women's clubs.

Mrs. W. T. Holmes, Mary Elizabeth Holmes and Miss Faith Warner are the guests of Mr. Warner in Circleville to attend the pumpkin show.

Mrs. Ada Jones returned this morning from Athens where she represented the Browning club at the Ohio Federation of Women's clubs in session there this week.

Miss Carsa Johnson, who was detained by a recent illness from being an honor guest at Miss Hamm's tea yesterday, arrived from Waverly today and will be Miss Hamm's guest for the Stitt-McClure wedding Monday night. Miss Louise Wolford and Mr. Carl Johnson come up from Waverly in the morning to remain for the wedding.

Mr. Frank Christopher and family returned last night from Ada where they attended the golden wedding celebration of Mr. Christopher's parents.

Mr. Arthur Reed has severed his connection with Mr. Albert McCoy, undertaker, to engage in the same line with an undertaking firm in Virginia.

Mr. Dennis Dawson, upon whom Dr. Roy Brown performed an appendicitis operation ten days ago, has made good recovery and was able to return to his home a couple of days ago.

Rev. T. W. Locke and family are now located at "The Dennison" in Columbus, and expect to be there for a couple of weeks while the parsonage on Fourth avenue is being fitted up. Rev. Locke came down today to conduct the funeral services of Mr. Abner Smith.

Mr. H. P. Brown, a traveling man of Columbus, who was taken seriously ill at the Cherry hotel a few days ago and removed to the Hodson hospital by Dr. Roy Brown, was able to return to his home today. Dr. Frank Warner, president of the State Board of Health, a personal friend of Mr. Brown's visited him at the hospital.

Mr. W. E. Smith is on his way from Salt Lake City, Utah, called by the death of his father, Mr. Abner Smith. To the regret of the family he cannot reach here in time of the funeral this afternoon, and the remains will be placed in the vault waiting his arrival. Another son, Mr. J. Howland Smith and family, of Frankfort, are here.

RATHER A PECULIAR HOBBY

Chief Executive of New York Said to Have a Marked Fondness for Pigs.

"Pigs is pigs" with Mayor Gaynor of New York. They are his favorite animals, on foot. Besides raising quite a number himself at his farm Deep Wells, at St. James, L. I., he always displays an interest in pigs owned by his neighbors.

He insists on them raising pigs. The pigless folk of St. James hear from him (and he uses just as sharp language in his neighborly conversation as he does in writing letters to rat catchers, etc.) and hear from him often until they annex a few "porkers" as a side line. Several denizens of that locale admit they keep a few pigs just to keep peace in the village.

Once a boy did him a really good turn and he desired to show his appreciation of the act. Of course the boy got a pig for his reward. When the mayor goes for his jaunt through the countryside he calls on all the farmers who raise pigs. The others do not receive a visit from him.

Whenever he hears that a pig is ill, no matter if it is six miles away, he goes to see that pig. And he usually prescribes some home remedy for the animal. He has been known to walk ten miles on the hottest day to visit an indisposed pig.

When the mayor visits his country place at the end of each week during the summer there is always a group of villagers on hand to greet him. As he goes among them shaking their hands, instead of inquiring about their health, he says: "How are your pigs?"—New York Herald.

Miss Louise Wolford and Mr. Carl Johnson come up from Waverly in the morning to remain for the wedding.

Mr. Frank Christopher and family returned last night from Ada where they attended the golden wedding celebration of Mr. Christopher's parents.

Mr. Arthur Reed has severed his connection with Mr. Albert McCoy, undertaker, to engage in the same line with an undertaking firm in Virginia.

Mr. Dennis Dawson, upon whom Dr. Roy Brown performed an appendicitis operation ten days ago, has made good recovery and was able to return to his home a couple of days ago.

Rev. T. W. Locke and family are now located at "The Dennison" in Columbus, and expect to be there for a couple of weeks while the parsonage on Fourth avenue is being fitted up. Rev. Locke came down today to conduct the funeral services of Mr. Abner Smith.

Mr. H. P. Brown, a traveling man of Columbus, who was taken seriously ill at the Cherry hotel a few days ago and removed to the Hodson hospital by Dr. Roy Brown, was able to return to his home today. Dr. Frank Warner, president of the State Board of Health, a personal friend of Mr. Brown's visited him at the hospital.

Mr. W. E. Smith is on his way from Salt Lake City, Utah, called by the death of his father, Mr. Abner Smith. To the regret of the family he cannot reach here in time of the funeral this afternoon, and the remains will be placed in the vault waiting his arrival. Another son, Mr. J. Howland Smith and family, of Frankfort, are here.

RATHER A PECULIAR HOBBY

Chief Executive of New York Said to Have a Marked Fondness for Pigs.

"Pigs is pigs" with Mayor Gaynor of New York. They are his favorite animals, on foot. Besides raising quite a number himself at his farm Deep Wells, at St. James, L. I., he always displays an interest in pigs owned by his neighbors.

He insists on them raising pigs. The piggish folk of St. James hear from him (and he uses just as sharp language in his neighborly conversation as he does in writing letters to rat catchers, etc.) and hear from him often until they annex a few "porkers" as a side line. Several denizens of that locale admit they keep a few pigs just to keep peace in the village.

Once a boy did him a really good turn and he desired to show his appreciation of the act. Of course the boy got a pig for his reward. When the mayor goes for his jaunt through the countryside he calls on all the farmers who raise pigs. The others do not receive a visit from him.

Whenever he hears that a pig is ill, no matter if it is six miles away, he goes to see that pig. And he usually prescribes some home remedy for the animal. He has been known to walk ten miles on the hottest day to visit an indisposed pig.

When the mayor visits his country place at the end of each week during the summer there is always a group of villagers on hand to greet him. As he goes among them shaking their hands, instead of inquiring about their health, he says: "How are your pigs?"—New York Herald.

WAKENING CHURCH SLEEPERS

One John Rudge is on record as having bequeathed to the parish of Trysull, in Shropshire, England, twenty shillings a year to be paid to "a poor man" employed to go about church in summer to keep people awake.

At another English church, that of Acton in Cheshire, it was the practice during the middle of the last century for one of the church wardens to proceed through the church during service with a huge wand in his hand, wherewith, if any one of the congregation were observed to be asleep he was instantly awakened by a tap on the head.

In Warwickshire a similar custom prevailed. A warden bearing a stout wand shaped like a hayfork at the end stepped stealthily up and down the nave and the aisles and whenever he saw an individual asleep he touched him so effectively that the nap was broken—this being some times accomplished by the application of the fork to the nape of the neck.

A more playful method obtained in another church. The beadle went about during service carrying a long staff, to one end of which was attached a fox's brush and to the other a knob. With the former he gently tickled the faces of the women sleepers, while with the knob he bestowed a sharp rap on the heads of male offenders.—Harper's Weekly

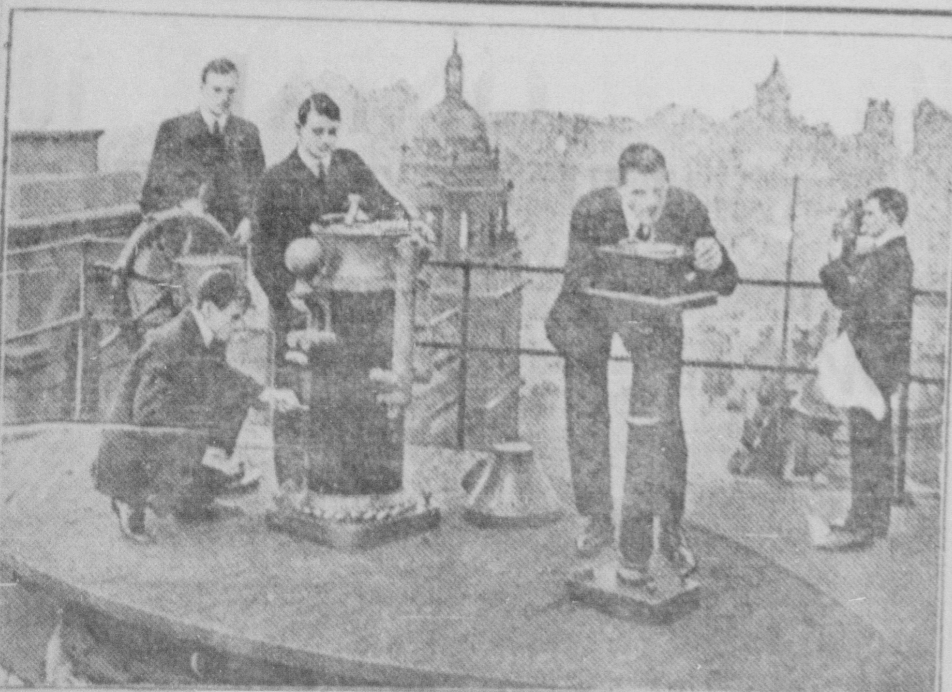

SURVIVED TERRIBLE STORM.

King Alfonso of Spain, the other day received in audience a fisherman named Escurrea, the skipper of a smack from Leguelitio, near Bilbao, who survived the recent catastrophe to the fishing fleet on the northern coast of Spain. Escurrea clung to the mast for two days and three nights in the midst of a terrible sea, and saw all his comrades gradually drop off and perish. Escurrea himself believed he was doomed, when a steamer picked him up. The king listened to the mariner's terrible story with sympathy.

GOLD TEETH ARE PAWNED

"You would be surprised at the funny things that are pawned at the local pawnshops and second-hand stores," said Detective Frank Elvin of Louisville. "The last thing that you would suppose a person to pawn is the filling out of his teeth, but it is a common practice. They don't get much, but I guess 'every little bit helps' with them when they need the money."

Study Navigation on Roof

British lads have an unequalled chance to learn how to be sailors in the excellently equipped school of navigation in Glasgow. Notable among its novel pieces of apparatus is a large device mounted on the roof. This instrument, which consists of a revolving platform, mounted on a central axis, and operated by a steering-wheel and gearing, is designed for experimental work in adjusting a ship's compass for the various magnetic forces which are generated in the steel hull of a ship. The several fittings near the compass are of gun metal, to eliminate as much as possible the erratic effects of extraneous metal, and to admit of delicate experiments being made. The students stand on the platform and are carried round with it as it revolves, so that the operation of "swinging ship" is made as nearly practical as is possible on shore.

CUTTING ROADWAYS IN PARK

Work of Government Surveyors and Builders in Montana Has Been One of Difficulties.

Denver, Col.—Remarkable progress was made in cutting roads and trails through the dense forests of Glacier National park, Montana, this season, and even now automobiles are pushing their way into one of the few government parks where this most popular form of transportation is allowed. In fact, outside of the Yosemite, Glacier National park is the only government playground for the people where the automobile is not barred. An automobile road is now being built along the eastern side of this 1,500 square-mile playground. The road winds in and out of canyons or crosses the open plain seeking easy grades, and when completed this scenic highway will have few equals in the world.

Type of Country Through Which Roads Are Being Built.

The difficulties of road construction in the newest and most popular of Uncle Sam's public parks are enormous. The roadway must be hewn through the solid forest. Stumps must be blasted out, and the tree cuttings burned as the work progresses. Smoke from the road-making camps can be seen for miles in the park. The highway that is being hewn out of the pine trees is as wide as a city boulevard, and as fast as the way is cleared through the forest, experienced roadmakers are being set at work, and a smooth and permanent roadway is constructed, equaling any of the European roads which have attracted so many automobile tourists abroad.

It is recognized that, in order to attract the public to the wonderful parks which Uncle Sam has set aside, automobile highways must be constructed. The auto cannot be kept out of the government parks many seasons longer. In fact, there is a determined movement now afoot to have Yellowstone and other national parks opened to the automobile.

A few years ago Glacier park was a virgin wilderness, untraveled save by hunters who penetrated the forests and mountains in search of the wild game which has always abounded there. The park is in the northwestern corner of Montana, and through it runs the real backbone of the continent, as from here water flows to three oceans. Sixty active glaciers have been discovered in the park—the remains of the great mass of ice that covered this region in ages past. Stories of the scenic wonders of the region became current, and two or three years ago congress set aside a vast region, under the act for the creation of national parks and monuments, and the work of opening this new attraction to the public was begun at once. No other national park has sprung so quickly into popular favor, probably for the reason that no other park offers such a variety of attractions.

FORTUNE IN THE PUNCTURE

A puncture in an automobile tire isn't always a misfortune, according to the recent experience of an autoist at Grass Valley, Nev. The reason for his philosophy may be explained in the fact that while driving he suddenly heard a report, and, leaving his seat, he looked upon the spectacle of a punctured tire and proceeded to fix it. During the course of his labors he had occasion to step near the little stream of water that was close by. His eyes were caught by a sudden glint between the rocks, and, stooping over, he picked up a gold nugget that proved to be worth $70. The nugget exactly fitted the cut in the tire and caused the puncture.

BIG PRODUCTION OF BEER

World's Breweries in 1910 Turned Out 8,003,745,000 Gallons of the Amber Fluid.

Washington.—Nearly 8,003,745,000 gallons of beer was the world's production in the year 1910, according to a report to the state department from Consul Heimgartner at Liege, Belgium, quoting figures from the Action Economique. Of this enormous amount 7,925,000,000 gallons were consumed during the same period.

The United States occupied first place among the beer-producing countries, with an output of 1,908,010,377 gallons. Germany was second with 1,703,666,460 gallons, manufactured by 13,186 breweries. Great Britain ranked third and Austria-Hungary fourth.

Forges Check to See Mother.

Blanca, Colo.—Desire to return to his dying mother at Lawrenceburg, Ky., caused Joseph Hicks, twenty-two years old, to forge a check for $25 on his best friend, H. G. Carpenter. Realizing the gravity of his act, Hicks called up Carpenter by telephone and told him of the forgery, immediately afterward returning the money. Carpenter, a real estate dealer, promptly collected subscriptions from several friends and bought Hicks a railroad ticket back to Kentucky.

Hope in the Middle Ages

The description of the Middle Ages as "the modern world in embryo" was never more true than when applied to the sphere of industrial life, but even here it cannot be accepted entirely without reservation, the London Globe remarks. Workmen were combining in order to obtain higher wages and better conditions of work, or to settle disagreements between masters and men, in the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries, although, of course, their associations were on a much smaller scale than those of the workmen of the present day. Insignificant as their disputes seem, compared to our own, they possess a considerable interest for us, because, while the action of the men in the two periods exhibits a remarkable continuity of aims and methods, the efforts to end the troubles made by both the masters and by the arbitrators called in to judge between them and their employees illustrate the extraordinary difference between medieval and modern views of the rights of labor and show how enormously the position of the workman has improved.

Curb Placed Upon Combinations.

The black death, which desolated England in 1348-49, was especially virulent among the poor and carried off large numbers of laborers, those who survived, realizing their own value, perhaps for the first time, refused to work unless they received much higher wages than they had been receiving. The government responded by passing the statute of laborers, which forbade any one to take higher wages than he had received before the outbreak of the plague, and both "givers" and "takers" of excess wages were punished.

The very year that the statute was passed there was trouble among the shearmen of London; the masters complained that if a dispute arose between one of them and his man the servant went to his fellow workmen and "by covin and conspiracy between them" they ordered that none among them should work until the said master and his servant had come to an agreement. To put a stop to this state of affairs they made an ordinance, with the sanction of the mayor and aldermen, that in the future disputes should be settled by the wardens of the company and that servants refusing to submit to them should be handed over to the mayor for punishment. Later regulations required all members of the craft to take a stringent oath of obedience to the wardens and forbade any shearmen to give work to a servant at variance with his master.

A Strike in the Year 1397.

In 1387 the Journeymen Cordwainers were charged before the mayor of London with forming an illegal fraternity and with assaulting one of the trade who would not join it. The ringleaders did not deny the accusation and also admitted that a Dominican friar had agreed to petition the pope for a confirmation of the fraternity, so that no man, on pain of excommunication, would dare to interfere with it, a deed which the mayor declared would weaken the liberties of the city and the power of its officers. He consequently committed them to Newgate, to remain there until he should be better advised what to do with them, and his final decision is not recorded.

The letter books of the city of London contain accounts of the suppression of workmen's associations in three trades—the saddlers, the tailors and the bakers. They are all very much alike, and it will suffice to quote one of them. The master saddlers asserted that the serving men, or "yeomen," oftentimes held meetings, and that they demanded double the wages they used to have. The mayor, to whom the complaint was made, ordered the representatives of the two parties to confer together and report the result to him.

Meetings Were Prohibited.

On the appointed day they returned, and the serving men assured him that they had not tried to raise wages, and begged to be allowed to continue their meetings, but all to no purpose. He decreed that they should henceforth be under the rule of the Masters of the Guild, and that they should no longer have a fraternity of their own or hold meetings. At the same time, however, he enjoined the masters to govern them properly, and promised to afford them speedy justice if grievances were unduly inflicted upon them, and this is the only indication in all the cases we have considered of any sympathy whatever being shown with the men's point of view. Submission to the rule of the masters or wardens must have been peculiarly irksome, when, as happened in some guilds, the journeymen were debarred from any share in electing them.

Labor Troubles in English Towns.

London was by no means the only place which suffered from labor troubles. The fullers of Bristol ordained that if servants rebelled and would not work they should be brought before the mayor, to be dealt with according to law and reason. The journeymen weavers of Coventry formed a guild three times, but each time it was put down. On one occasion they not only refused to work themselves, but also prevented others working. Sometimes the corporation, strong as it was, could not cope with the journeymen, and was obliged to apply to the crown for assistance.

SURVIVED TERRIBLE STORM.

King Alfonso of Spain, the other day received in audience a fisherman named Escurrea, the skipper of a smuck from Leguicillo, near Bilbao, who survived the recent catastrophe to the fishing fleet on the northern coast of Spain. Escurrea clung to the mast for two days and three nights in the midst of a terrible sea, and saw all his comrades gradually drop off and perish. Escurrea himself believed he was doomed, when a steamer picked him up. The king listened to the mariner's terrible story with sympathy.

GOLD TEETH ARE PAWNED

"You would be surprised at the funny things that are pawned at the local pawnshops and second-hand stores," said Detective Frank Elvin of Louisville. "The last thing that you would suppose a person to pawn is the filling out of his teeth, but it is a common practice. They don't get much, but I guess 'every little bit helps' with them when they need the money."

Study Navigation on Roof

British lads have an unequalled chance to learn how to be sailors in the excellently equipped school of navigation in Glasgow. Notable among its novel pieces of apparatus is a large devilscope mounted on the roof. This instrument, which consists of a revolving platform, mounted on a central axis, and operated by a steering-wheel and gearing, is designed for experimental work in adjusting a ship's compass for the various magnetic forces which are generated in the steel hull of a ship. The several fittings near the compass are of gun metal, to eliminate as much as possible the erratic effects of extraneous metal, and to admit of delicate experiments being made. The students stand on the platform and are carried round with it as it revolves, so that the operation of "swinging ship" is made as nearly practical as is possible on shore.

CUTTING ROADWAYS IN PARK

Work of Government Surveyors and Builders in Montana Has Been One of Difficulties.

Denver, Col.—Remarkable progress was made in cutting roads and trails through the dense forests of Glacier National park, Montana, this season, and even now automobiles are pushing their way into one of the few government parks where this most popular form of transportation is allowed. In fact, outside of the Yosemite, Glacier National park is the only government playground for the people where the automobile is not barred. An automobile road is now being built along the eastern side of this 1,500 square-mile playground. The road winds in and out of canyons or crosses the open plain seeking easy grades, and when completed this scenic highway will have few equals in the world.

The difficulties of road construction in the newest and most popular of Uncle Sam's public parks are enormous. The roadway must be hewn through the solid forest. Stumps must be blasted out, and the tree cuttings burned as the work progresses. Smoke from the road-making camps can be seen for miles in the park. The highway that is being hewn out of the pine trees is as wide as a city boulevard, and as fast as the way is cleared through the forest, experienced roadmakers are being set at work, and a smooth and permanent roadway is constructed, equaling any of the European roads which have attracted so many automobile tourists abroad.

It is recognized that, in order to attract the public to the wonderful parks which Uncle Sam has set aside, automobile highways must be constructed. The auto cannot be kept out of the government parks many seasons longer. In fact, there is a determined movement now afoot to have Yellowstone and other national parks opened to the automobile.

A few years ago Glacier park was a virgin wilderness, untraveled save by hunters who penetrated the forests and mountains in search of the wild game which has always abounded there. The park is in the northwestern corner of Montana, and through it runs the real backbone of the continent, as from here water flows to three oceans. Sixty active glaciers have been discovered in the park—the remains of the great mass of ice that covered this region in ages past. Stories of the scenic wonders of the region became current, and two or three years ago congress set aside a vast region, under the act for the creation of national parks and monuments, and the work of opening this new attraction to the public was begun at once. No other national park has sprung so quickly into popular favor, probably for the reason that no other park offers such a variety of attractions.

BIG PRODUCTION OF BEER

World's Breweries in 1910 Turned Out 8,003,745,000 Gallons of the Amber Fluid.

Washington.—Nearly 8,003,745,000 gallons of beer was the world's production in the year 1910, according to a report to the state department from Consul Helmgartner at Liege, Belgium, quoting figures from the Action Economique. Of this enormous amount 7,925,000,000 gallons were consumed during the same period.

The United States occupied first place among the beer-producing countries, with an output of 1,908,010,377 gallons.

Germany was second with 1,703,666,160 gallons, manufactured by 13,186 breweries. Great Britain ranked third and Austria-Hungary fourth.

Forges Check to See Mother.

Blanca, Colo.—Desire to return to his dying mother at Lawrenceburg, Ky., caused Joseph Hicks, twenty-two years old, to forge a check for $25 on his best friend, H. G. Carpenter. Realizing the gravity of his act, Hicks called up Carpenter by telephone and told him of the forgery, immediately afterward returning the money. Carpenter, a real estate dealer, promptly collected subscriptions from several friends and bought Hicks a railroad ticket back to Kentucky.

Hope in the Middle Ages

The description of the Middle Ages as "the modern world in embryo" was never more true than when applied to the sphere of industrial life, but even here it cannot be accepted entirely without reservation, the London Globe remarks. Workmen were combining in order to obtain higher wages and better conditions of work, or to settle disagreements between masters and men, in the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries, although, of course, their associations were on a much smaller scale than those of the workmen of the present day. Insignificant as their disputes seem, compared to our own, they possess a considerable interest for us, because, while the action of the men in the two periods exhibits a remarkable continuity of aims and methods, the efforts to end the troubles made by both the masters and by the arbitrators called in to judge between them and their employes illustrate the extraordinary difference between medieval and modern views of the rights of labor and show how enormously the position of the workman has improved.

Curb Placed Upon Combinations.

The black death, which desolated England in 1348-49, was especially virulent among the poor and carried off large numbers of laborers, those who survived, realizing their own value, perhaps for the first time, refused to work unless they received much higher wages than they had been receiving. The government responded by passing the statute of laborers, which forbade any one to take higher wages than he had received before the outbreak of the plague, and both "givers" and "takers" of excess wages were punished.

The very year that the statute was passed there was trouble among the shearmen of London; the masters complained that if a dispute arose between one of them and his man the servant went to his fellow workmen and "by covin and conspiracy between them" they ordered that none among them should work until the said master and his servant had come to an agreement. To put a stop to this state of affairs they made an ordinance, with the sanction of the mayor and aldermen, that in the future disputes should be settled by the wardens of the company and that servants refusing to submit to them should be handed over to the mayor for punishment. Later regulations required all members of the craft to take a stringent oath of obedience to the wardens and forbade any shearmen to give work to a servant at variance with his master.

A Strike in the Year 1397.

In 1387 the Journeymen Cordwainers were charged before the mayor of London with forming an illegal fraternity and with assaulting one of the trade who would not join it. The ringleaders did not deny the accusation and also admitted that a Dominican friar had agreed to petition the pope for a confirmation of the fraternity, so that no man, on pain of excommunication, would dare to interfere with it, a deed which the mayor declared would weaken the liberties of the city and the power of its officers. He consequently committed them to Newgate, to remain there until he should be better advised what to do with them, and his final decision is not recorded.

The letter books of the city of London contain accounts of the suppression of workmen's associations in three trades—the saddlers, the tailors and the bakers. They are all very much alike, and it will suffice to quote one of them. The master saddlers asserted that the serving men, or "yeomen," oftentimes held meetings, and that they demanded double the wages they used to have. The mayor, to whom the complaint was made, ordered the representatives of the two parties to confer together and report the result to him.

Meetings Were Prohibited.

On the appointed day they returned, and the serving men assured him that they had not tried to raise wages, and begged to be allowed to continue their meetings, but all to no purpose. He decreed that they should henceforth be under the rule of the Masters of the Guild, and that they should no longer have a fraternity of their own or hold meetings. At the same time, however, he enjoined the masters to govern them properly, and promised to afford them speedy justice if grievances were unduly inflicted upon them, and this is the only indication in all the cases we have considered of any sympathy whatever being shown with the men's point of view. Submission to the rule of the masters or wardens must have been peculiarly irksome, when, as happened in some guilds, the journeymen were debarred from any share in electing them.

Labor Troubles in English Towns.

London was by no means the only place which suffered from labor troubles. The fullers of Bristol ordained that if servants rebelled and would not work they should be brought before the mayor, to be dealt with according to law and reason. The journeymen weavers of Coventry formed a guild three times, but each time it was put down. On one occasion they not only refused to work themselves, but also prevented others working. Sometimes the corporation, strong as it was, could not cope with the journeymen, and was obliged to apply to the crown for assistance.

BIG $700,000 PLANT GRAIN OF SALT WILL HELP

Stories of Importance of Signals Exaggerated by Writers—Some Yarns Are Made Readable.

A story has been going the rounds of the papers lately to the effect that the several clubs of the big leagues have been trying to emulate the early example of the Athletics in studying out the signals of the other clubs. It used to be the opinion that Connie Mack had his men trained so that they were constantly watching for the slightest indication of a signal on the part of the other players, and that the inside facts thus discovered were of inestimable value to the Athletics. It is now contended that many of the other teams are doing the same thing, and that it is as much a part of the education of a baseball player to be alert and keen to discover the other fellows' signals as it is to play the physical part of the game.

There is a good deal of bunk about all this signal stuff and wonderful stories of inside play and all that sort of thing, says the Milwaukee Sentinel. Unquestionably a good deal of the routine of baseball is done after some signal, but there is not nearly so much of it as some writers try to make the public believe. Neither is there very much opportunity to grab off the signals of another team.

It does very well to write press agent stories about this sort of thing, and it must be admitted that they are reasonably readable, but most of them want to be taken with a large size grain of salt.

CHICAGO NATIONAL LEAGUE CLUB TO ERECT CONCRETE STANDS EXTENDING OVER VACANT LOT ON POLK STREET SIDE OF GROUNDS.

Chicago's cubs will start the season of 1913 in a brand new park surrounded by $700,000 worth of steel, concrete, brick and terra cotta. Charles W. Murphy, president of the West side club, gave out the news by stating that the preliminary survey had been completed and that the architect, Herman Van Buskirk, would soon step forth with the plans. The work of excavating is billed to start within a few days.

For several months Murphy has been working on his plans with the view of giving the West Side fans a palace similar to those in vogue at Comiskey park, at Forbes field, Pittsburgh or the Polo grounds in New York. He has been gathering data and material since, as well as much coin of the realm, for high-class fan palaces come dear.

The plant will be located on the present grounds of the club, it being Murphy's idea to utilize the vacant space between the fence and Polk street, extending from Lincoln to Taylor street. Thus the enlarged grounds will take in territory a block long and extending back 160 feet to the sidewalk on Polk street.

Forty-eight thousand fans will be assured of seats when this massive plant is thrown open, and there will be standing room for 12,000 more, according to Murphy. Thus some fine, warm Sunday next summer 60,000 bugs may be seen comfortably assembled on the scene when the Cubs and Giants or the Cubs and Pirates get together.

To provide standing space for the 12,000 unable to secure seats the builders of this plant have conceived the idea of digging a sort of subway around the field, excavating to a depth of 18 inches directly in front of the bleachers and stands. Thus the fans forced to swarm out upon the field will be pecked in this subway without obstructing the range of the folks who are seated behind them.

Several new features will be incorporated in the grounds, says Mr. Murphy. For instance, there will be a complete megaphone system such as Mr. Ebbets is installing in the new Brooklyn grounds. By the means of this megaphone an operator engaged for the purpose can speak distinctly to patrons of the game in all sections of the grounds telling of each change in the fighting personnel.

Two decks will be provided in the stand, while the "dugout" arranged for the standing gentry will answer the purpose of a third deck. The playing diamond also will be moved and several important changes made, it being Murphy's aim to give Chicago one of the best plants of this kind in the country.

Welchance led the Southern league in batting this year with an average of .331.

Frank Chance talks right out from the shoulder when he has anything to say at all times.

One hundred and fifty-seven guns were made in the New York State league during the last season.

The Athletics will take a Cuban trip this fall, leaving for Havana on October 26, to be gone about three weeks.

NATIONALS CAME NEAR POSSESSING WOOD

Walter Johnson, the "Terrible Swede."

Where would the Washington team be today with Walter Johnson and Joe Wood, the two greatest pitchers in the game, both working on Griffith's pitching staff?

It was fate, or rather fate in the disguise of poor business ability, that prevented these two twirling stars from being team-mates on the Washington club.

In the spring of 1908, the Nationals played an exhibition game in Kansas City and Joe Cantillon watched a young pitcher strike out seven of the nine batsmen that faced him in the last three innings. The name of this young player was Joe Wood. Cantillon made arrangements to secure Wood right then and there. The Washington manager was given to understand that when the time came to dispose of Wood, the National club would be given first chance.

Cantillon allowed the prospective deal to go at that and during the summer Boston purchased Wood without Cantillon ever being consulted or given a chance to bid for Wood.

With Wood and Johnson on the pitching staff the Washington club, with its present field and batting strength, probably would have won the American League pennant.

And how sweet that world's series would have looked to Griffith with that dependable pair in harness.

Sox Smother Cubs

Win Championship of Chicago In Final Game of Series.

Chicago, Oct. 19.—Chicago's National league team was smothered in the final game of the city championship series, Comiskey's American league players winning 16 to 0. The slaughter so disgusted Manager Frank Chance that after the fifth inning he went to the clubhouse.

KEPT WARM BY ELECTRICITY

Ingenious Device Employed for Babies' Crib in Presbyterian Hospital in New York.

In the Presbyterian hospital, New York, there is an interesting instance of the application of electricity in the nursery for the benefit of the incubator babies. Here, says the Edison Monthly the problem is to provide plenty of fresh air and at the same time sufficient warmth for the babies, and this has been solved by a simple but effective form of crib warmer.

The sides of the bassinet in which the baby lies are covered with asbestos boards and beneath is an electric heater or foot warmer, with cable couplings and switch which allows the current to be regulated. In a warm-air chamber between the bassinet and the foot-warmer is a partition, so constructed with reference to the baby's position in the crib that the heat is reflected to the lower end of the bassinet. The child's feet are thus kept warm, while a lower temperature is maintained at the head.

Last Game of Season Will Be a Fast One

Tomorrow will witness the closing of the baseball season in this city when the Athletics meet that bunch of live wires from Springfield who call themselves the All Professionals. And they are professionals and one of the hardest fought games of the season is expected, and the All Professionals are expected to have their eyes opened to a few things from the local bunch of shifty amateurs.

Washington's lineup will be the same as last Sunday when they gave the Leesburg boys a trouncing. Springfield's line-up is a strong one indeed, as a glance at the following will quickly show:

Pat Donahue, Memphis, Tenn., c; Mercer, p, with Chillicothe Ohio State league; Kearns, p, Newark, Ohio State league; Keene, 1b, Springfield, O., Central and Indianapolis, Ind., Western league; F. Donahue, 2b, South Bend, Central league; M. Nye, ss, Worcester, Mass., New England league; Harrison, 3b, Newark, O., State and Los Angeles, Cal., Coast league; Collins, lf, Chattanooga, Tenn., Central league; Joe Dunn, cf, Mobile, Ala., Southern league; Farrell, rf, Springfield and Terre Haute, Centraj league.

During the past season the Athletics have been from Missouri, and very few of the visitors have "shown them". They are the same way with the Springfield bunch, and must be shown that the All Professionals can really play better ball than themselves.

Even the weather man has promised to smile upon the game tomorrow, and one of the largest crowds of the season is expected to witness the closing game.

IN BORROWED SET OF TEETH

Prospector Wanted to Appear Well in Photograph, and Effected Loan of Essentials.

Thomas Jefferson Stone was a typical claim holder and prospector. He came from Indiana. He had no teeth, his hair was gray, his features sallow and withered, and he looked sixty-three or sixty-four. He told me, however, he was only forty-six. There was a cowed, placid, helpless air about him, and yet in his eyes there was a fire—faint and glimmering, the fire of a fading fanaticism. He was still the victim of obsession. He had been 25 years prospecting, picking out claims, hoping to strike it rich some day.

I asked him how he lost his teeth. He said by taking medicine good for neuralgia, but too strong for his ivories. I asked him why he didn't have had a false set made. He said he had had a set, but he took them out and put them in his pocket one day, where his handkerchief was, "to rest his mouth," and happening to take out the handkerchief quickly, he pulled out the set of teeth also and the plate fell on the floor and broke.

I told Thomas Jefferson Stone that I wanted his photograph, and three days afterward he was ready for the kodak. When he came I saw he had a set of teeth in his mouth. I was astonished. We were scores of miles from any dentist, or any town where a dentist could be.

"Hello, Stone," I said; "you've got a set of teeth. How's that?" "He gave a smile of conquest, 'I borrowed 'em to be photographed,'" he said.—Gilbert Parker in the Metropolitan Magazine.

STOWAWAY HEEDS A VISION

Explains That He Received a Divine Summons to Preach to Benighted Chinese—Is Shipped Back.

San Francisco Cal.—Harold Yates, a frightened youth, who had seen a vision and started for the Orient to preach to the Chinese, was brought back to San Francisco on the steamer Nile, which reached here recently.

Yates' "call," by which he was summoned to spread the message of the gospel among the heathen, led him to stow away on the steamer Manchuria, which left here Friday.

Captain Friele of the Manchuria listened to the young man's account of his vision, after he had emerged from his hiding place, but decided that it did not entitle Yates to free passage and the stowaway was transferred to the Nile when that vessel was met in midocean.

Yates, who was employed as a bell-boy at a local hotel, was awakened with difficulty last Friday morning by another bellboy. He explained that he had been listening to a divine summons to the missionary field and hurriedly packed a few belongings and boarded the Manchuria, where he hid in the hold.

AGED TORTOISE TAKES TRIP

At the age of two hundred, or thereabouts, a tortoise belonging to the duke of Beaufort decided this year to take a summer holiday. It was missed in July from the duke's Forest of Wentworth, near Chepstow, Monmouthshire, and has been found at Newport, in the same county. The tortoise had walked to the outskirts of Newport—eight or nine miles—and then had been picked up and carried into the town. The age of the duke's tortoise is given "approximately" by the forest rangers, but it has hibernated under a particular rock in the forest for thirty years, and its great age is inferred from its size and weight. It is eighteen inches long and weighs ten pounds. There is nothing unusual in such longevity; a patriarch in the "Zoo," known as Methuselah, died three years ago at the reputed age of two hundred and fifty.

WOODPECKERS OF LARGE SIZE

Species That Abound in Mexico and Central America Attain Large Proportions.

To those readers who may only be familiar with the average sized woodpeckers found in this country, it will be interesting to know that there are species of this famous group of birds in existence, which, even when compared with such sizable species as the well-known "flicker," appear in proportion like great ravens, placed by their lesser congeners, the garrulous magpies.

Our common pileated woodpecker, which ranges over North America at large, may attain a length of nearly 20 inches, while the handsome black woodpecker of northern Europe, the pie noir of the French, averages but three or four inches smaller.

Both of these, however, undersize the true giants of this interesting race of birds, for our ponderous ivory-billed woodpecker, now found only in the wilder timbered districts of the gulf states, has a length of 21 inches and a wing extent of nearly a yard. The magnificent imperial woodpecker of Mexico and Central America is even larger by an inch or more than the last-named species, and is truly a most remarkable bird.

There is one very peculiar thing about these big woodpeckers, and that is in their general coloration they are all of a glossy black, with white markings, and the males have brilliant scarlet crests or other color areas of the same on their heads.

The imperial and the ivory-billed have powerful white, chisel-cutting bills, capable of making great havoc with the partly decayed trunks of forest trees, where they search for the pine-destroying insects which constitute their chief food.

NEWS and NOTES GOSSIP

BIG $700,000 PLANT

Seats to Be Provided for at Least 60,000 Baseball Fans.

Chicago National League Club to Erect Concrete Stands Extending Over Vacant Lot on Polk Street Side of Grounds.

Chicago's cubs will start the season of 1913 in a brand new park surrounded by $700,000 worth of steel, concrete, brick and terra cotta. Charles W. Murphy, president of the West side club, gave out the news by stating that the preliminary survey had been completed and that the architect, Herman Van Buskirk, would soon step forth with the plans. The work of excavating is billed to start within a few days.

For several months Murphy has been working on his plans with the view of giving the West Side fans a palace similar to those in vogue at Comiskey park, at Forbes field, Pittsburg or the Polo grounds in New York. He has been gathering data and material since, as well as much coin of the realm, for high class fan palaces come dear.

The plant will be located on the present grounds of the club, it being Murphy's idea to utilize the vacant space between the fence and Polk street, extending from Lincoln to Taylor street. Thus the enlarged grounds will take in territory a block long and extending back 160 feet to the sidewalk on Polk street.

Forty-eight thousand fans will be assured of seats when this massive plant is thrown open, and there will be standing room for 12,000 more, according to Murphy. Thus some fine, warm Sunday next summer 60,000 bugs may be seen comfortably assembled on the scene when the Cubs and Giants or the Cubs and Pirates get together.

To provide standing space for the 12,000 unable to secure seats the builders of this plant have conceived the idea of digging a sort of subway around the field, excavating to a depth of 18 inches directly in front of the bleachers and stands. Thus the fans forced to swarm out upon the field will be packed in this subway without obstructing the range of the folks who are seated behind them.

Several new features will be incorporated in the grounds, says Mr. Murphy. For instance, there will be a complete megaphone system such as Mr. Ebbets is installing in the new Brooklyn grounds. By the means of this megaphone an operator engaged for the purpose can speak distinctly to patrons of the game in all sections of the grounds telling of each change in the fighting personnel.

Two decks will be provided in the stand, while the "dugout" arranged for the standing gentry will answer the purpose of a third deck. The playing diamond also will be moved and several important changes made, it being Murphy's aim to give Chicago one of the best plants of this kind in the country.

Welchance led the Southern league in batting this year with an average of .331.

Frank Chance talks right out from the shoulder when he has anything to say at all times.

One hundred and fifty-seven runs were made in the New York State league during the last season.

The Athletics will take a Cuban trip this fall, leaving for Havana on October 26, to be gone about three weeks.

GRAIN OF SALT WILL HELP

Stories of Importance of Signals Exaggerated by Writers—Some Yarns Are Made Readable.

A story has been going the rounds of the papers lately to the effect that the several clubs of the big leagues have been trying to emulate the early example of the Athletics in studying out the signals of the other clubs. It used to be the opinion that Connie Mack had his men trained so that they were constantly watching for the slightest indication of a signal on the part of the other players, and that the inside facts thus discovered were of inestimable value to the Athletics. It is now contended that many of the other teams are doing the same thing, and that it is as much a part of the education of a baseball player to be alert and keen to discover the other fellows' signals as it is to play the physical part of the game.

There is a good deal of bunk about all this signal stuff and wonderful stories of inside play and all that sort of thing, says the Milwaukee Sentinel. Unquestionably a good deal of the routine of baseball is done after some signal, but there is not nearly so much of it as some writers try to make the public believe. Neither is there very much opportunity to grab off the signals of another team.

It does very well to write press agent stories about this sort of thing, and it must be admitted that they are reasonably readable, but most of them want to be taken with a large size grain of salt.

AIDED THE NEW YORK GIANTS

J. Owen Wilson, whose services were acquired by the Pirates through the medium of the draft five years ago, is said to be the chap who helped the Giants to the flag this season.

He has ripped off thirty-four triples this season, seven of them off the Cub pitchers.

Irwin's Promising Son. Arthur Irwin, the scout of the Highlanders, has a son who is destined to shine on the diamond one of these days. He is working in the outfield every day and promises to be a clever player in time.

Bunch of New Managers. There are going to be a bunch of new managers in the majors next year, if you dare judge by present indications. Some of the club owners couldn't even wait until next year to change.

NATIONALS CAME NEAR POSSESSING WOOD

Walter Johnson, the "Terrible Swede."

Where would the Washington team be today with Walter Johnson and Joe Wood, the two greatest pitchers in the game, both working on Griffith's pitching staff?

It was fate, or rather fate in the disguise of poor business ability, that prevented these two twirling stars from being team-mates on the Washington club.

In the spring of 1908, the Nationals played an exhibition game in Kansas City and Joe Cantillon watched a young pitcher strike out seven of the nine batters that faced him in the last three innings. The name of this young player was Joe Wood. Cantillon made arrangements to secure Wood right then and there. The Washington manager was given to understand that when the time came to dispose of Wood, the National club would be given first chance.

Cantillon allowed the prospective deal to go at that and during the summer Boston purchased Wood without Cantillon ever being consulted or given a chance to bid for Wood.

With Wood and Johnson on the pitching staff the Washington club, with its present field and batting strength, probably would have won the American League pennant. And how sweet that world's series would have looked to Griffith with that dependable pair in harness.

Sox Smother Cubs

Win Championship of Chicago in Final Game of Series.

Chicago, Oct. 19.—Chicago's National league team was smothered in the final game of the city championship series, Comiskey's American league players winning 16 to 0. The slaughter so disgusted Manager Frank Chance that after the fifth inning he went to the clubhouse.

KEPT WARM BY ELECTRICITY

Ingenious Device Employed for Babies' Crib in Presbyterian Hospital in New York.

In the Presbyterian hospital, New York, there is an interesting instance of the application of electricity in the nursery for the benefit of the incubator babies. Here, says the Edison Monthly the problem is to provide plenty of fresh air and at the same time sufficient warmth for the babies, and this has been solved by a simple but effective form of crib warmer.

The sides of the bassinet in which the baby lies are covered with asbestos boards and beneath is an electric heater or foot warmer, with cable couplings and switch which allows the current to be regulated. In a warm-air chamber between the bassinet and the foot-warmer is a partition, so constructed with reference to the baby's position in the crib that the heat is reflected to the lower end of the bassinet. The child's feet are thus kept warm, while a lower temperature is maintained at the head.

Last Game of Season Will Be a Fast One

Tomorrow will witness the closing of the baseball season in this city when the Athletics meet that bunch of live wires from Springfield who call themselves the All Professionals.

And they are professionals and one of the hardest fought games of the season is expected, and the All Professionals are expected to have their eyes opened to a few things from the local bunch of husky amateurs.

Washington's lineup will be the same as last Sunday when they gave the Leesburg boys a trouncing.

Springfield's line-up is a strong one indeed, as a glance at the following will quickly show:

Pat Donahue, Memphis, Tenn., c.; Mercer, p, with Chillicothe Ohio State league; Kearns, p, Newark Ohio State league; Keene, 1b, Springfield, O., Central and Indianapolis, Ind., Western league; F. Donahue, 2b, South Bend, Central league; M. Nye, ss, Worcester, Mass., New England league; Harrison, 3b, Newark, O., State and Los Angeles, Cal., Coast league; Collins, lf, Chattanooga, Tenn., Central league; Joe Dunn, cf, Mobile, Ala., Southern league; Farrell, rf, Springfield and Terre Haute, Centraj league.

During the past season the Athletics have been from Missouri, and very few of the visitors have "shown them". They are the same way with the Springfield bunch, and must be shown that the All Professionals can really play better ball than themselves.

Even the weather man has promised to smile upon the game tomorrow, and one of the largest crowds of the season is expected to witness the closing game.

IN BORROWED SET OF TEETH

Prospector Wanted to Appear Well in Photograph, and Effected Loan of Essentials.

Thomas Jefferson Stone was a typical claim holder and prospector. He came from Indiana. He had no teeth, his hair was gray, his features sallow and withered, and he looked sixty-three or sixty-four. He told me, however, he was only forty-six. There was a cowed, placid, helpless air about him, and yet in his eyes there was a fire—faint and glimmering, the fire of a fading fanaticism. He was still the victim of obsession. He had been 25 years prospecting, picking out claims, hoping to strike it rich some day.

I asked him how he lost his teeth. He said by taking medicine good for neuralgia, but too strong for his ivory-ries. I asked him why he didn't have had a false set made. He said he had had a set, but he took them out and put them in his pocket one day, where his handkerchief was, "to rest his mouth," and happening to take out the handkerchief quickly, he pulled out the set of teeth also and the plate fell on the floor and broke.

I told Thomas Jefferson Stone that I wanted his photograph, and three days afterward he was ready for the kodak. When he came I saw he had a set of teeth in his mouth. I was astonished. We were scores of miles from any dentist, or any town where a dentist could be.

"Hello, Stone," I said; "you've got a set of teeth. How's that?"

"He gave a smile of conquest, 'I borrowed 'em to be photographed,'" he said.—Gilbert Parker in the Metropolitan Magazine.

STOWAWAY HEEDS A VISION

Explains That He Received a Divine Summons to Preach to Benighted Chinese—Is Shipped Back.

San Francisco Cal.—Harold Yates, a frightened youth, who had seen a vision and started for the Orient to preach to the Chinese, was brought back to San Francisco on the steamer Nile, which reached here recently.

Yates' "call," by which he was summoned to spread the message of the gospel among the heathen, led him to stow away on the steamer Manchuria, which left here Friday.

Captain Friele of the Manchuria listened to the young man's account of his vision, after he had emerged from his hiding place, but decided that it did not entitle Yates to free passage and the stowaway was transferred to the Nile when that vessel was met in midocean.

Yates, who was employed as a bell-boy at a local hotel, was awakened with difficulty last Friday morning by another bellboy. He explained that he had been listening to a divine summons to the missionary field and hurriedly packed a few belongings and boarded the Manchuria, where he hid in the hold.

AGED TORTOISE TAKES TRIP

At the age of two hundred, or thereabouts, a tortoise belonging to the duke of Beaufort decided this year to take a summer holiday. It was missed in July from the duke's Forest of Wentworth, near Chepstow, Monmouthshire, and has been found at Newport, in the same county. The tortoise had walked to the outskirts of Newport—eight or nine miles—and then had been picked up and carried into the town. The age of the duke's tortoise is given "approximately" by the forest rangers, but it has hibernated under a particular rock in the forest for thirty years, and its great age is inferred from its size and weight. It is eighteen inches long and weighs ten pounds. There is nothing unusual in such longevity; a patriarch in the "Zoo," known as Methuselah, died three years ago at the reputed age of 175 hundred and fifty.

Walnut Trees Bring Fortune of $27,000

Few persons realize the great value of walnut timber at this age, as walnut was so plentiful a few years ago that much furniture was made of solid walnut timber.

A few days ago 138 walnut trees, located on the Volch Weaver farm, eight miles south of Xenia, were sold to Theodore Francke & Company, of Cincinnati, for a small fortune.

The amount received by Mr. Weaver is said to have been approximately $27,000.

Thirty of the finest trees in the lot are being dug out by the roots, the Cincinnati company being determined to have every possible inch of the valuable wood. The others will be cut as close to the ground as possible. All will be cut up and used for veneering.

A gang of six men are now at work cutting the trees and preparing them for shipment. Mr. Weaver sold trees as they stood and the Lumber Company has to stand the expense of cutting and shipping them.

In order to give an idea of the value of walnut timber Mr. Weaver stated that he had been offered $500 for two of the trees in the lot and refused it.

Some of the timber is said to be the famous "bird's eye" which is so much in demand.

Rain Just What Wheat Required

The farmers are greatly pleased with the rain of Friday and Friday night as it was just what the newly sown wheat was needing most to give it a good start before the winter sets in.

As a general rule the wheat is doing exceptionally well, and will obtain a good start before the cold weather, and the rain has added materially to the ideal conditions for quick growth.

Finishing Races This Afternoon

The last day's races of the Fall Race Meet at the local fair grounds, which were postponed from Friday until Saturday on account of the rain, were resumed this afternoon with a fairly good sized crowd in attendance.

The unfinished races of Thursday, which were also carried over, were to be finished this afternoon.

At the time of going to press the races are in full swing, and proving as exciting as those of Thursday, which were so thoroughly enjoyed by the crowd present.

PROVED A MAN OF HIS WORD

Broker, True to Promise, Remembers Old Apple Woman in His Day of Rejoicing.

"Yes, I have me reg'lar customers," said the old apple woman at a Wal street corner as she polished an apple, "and now and then I has one that lets me share in his good luck. When industrials was on the kite, along comes a broker who says:

"'Good mornin' to ye, Aunt Sally and how's apples sellin' today?"

"Two fer five, yer highness," says I 'which is cheap fer apples at this season o' the year.'

"'That's true,' says he, 'and I'll take along a couple fer luck. I'm in industrials to make or lose a hundred thousand. If I make, I'll remember ye.'

"'Gord bless ye!' I says, as I giber the apples an extra polish and hands them over. It was three days before I sees him ag'in. Then he stops at me stand wid a look uv benevolence or his face, and money in his hand, and says:

"'Aunt Sally, yer polished apples brought me luck, and I'm a man av me word. I cleared a hundred thous and that day.'

"'Gord be praised, yer worship!'

"'And ye'll please accept this as a little token av love and esteem from yer true friend.'

"'And wid that the dear, good-hearted man hands me a nickel and walks away wid the benevolence creeping down his shirt collar. And I was so affected that a boy stole two av me biggest apples whilst the tears was in me eyes. My husband says it ought to have been a dime at least. But, God bless ye, sir, that broker could have sold out his business and moved to Boston and dodged me altogether, ye know."

Vienna.—A lengthy notice appears in the Official Gazette, calling upon the heirs of the late Count Franz Palffy, who died on November 14, 1852, to withdraw a deposit from the treasury of the civil court of justice which has been lying there over 30 years. The sum is one heller—one-fifth of a cent. Unless withdrawn, under Austrian custom, it will be applied to paying off the national debt.

FORGED LARGE CHECK ON BANK OF SABINA

Harry Lynch Captured at Red Key, Indiana, After Buying Automobile With Forged Check and Having Victim Drive Machine as Far as This City.

C. C. Crane, an automobile dealer of Columbus, dropped off of the morning train and hurried to the sheriff's office where he asked the assistance of Sheriff Nelson in locating a young man who had swindled him out of an automobile for which a forged check for $500 had been tendered.

From here Mr. Crane went to Sabina, where he wired back that the man he wanted had been captured in Red Key, Ind., with the automobile still in his possession, and that he had given the name of Harry Lynch, a young man who has been in the Sabina neighborhood for some time.

Young Lynch went to Columbus and purchased an Overland runabout from Crane, giving a check on the Sabina bank for the sum of $500 and signing the name of U. M. Morgan, of Sabina. He also went to the Secretary of State's office and gave another check for license No. 62,191, placed it on the machine, and asked that Crane drive him as far as this city so that he could learn to operate the machine and drive it proudly into Sabina by himself.

Crane came as far as this city, left young Lynch, who had represented himself as being U. M. Morgan, and returned to Columbus. The checks went to the Sabina bank for payment, and were returned to Columbus unpaid. Crane made a hurried investigation, learned that he had been victimized for the price of the roadster, and placed the affair in the hands of the Columbus police, and by notifying adjoining cities the man was located at Red Key, just over the line in Indiana.

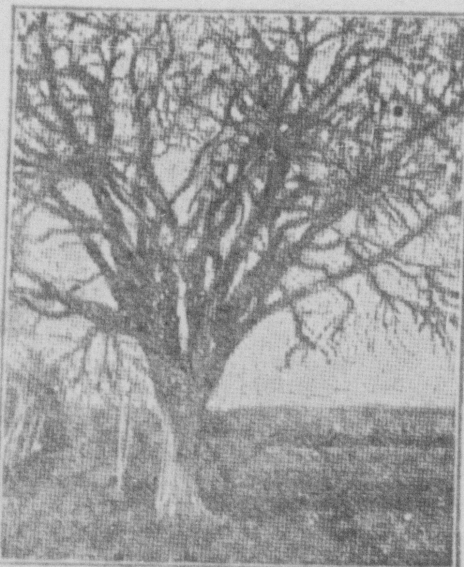

The fellow is 21 years of age, and worked things smoothly enough for a professional.

He will be brought back to Columbus to face the charge, and a term in the penitentiary stares him in the face. It is said that it is not the first time he has been in like trouble.

MARKS A MEMORABLE SPOT

Ancient Elm in Skowhegan, Me., Under Which Army of Benedict Arnold Encamped.

One of the camping places of the force under Benedict Arnold which, in September, 1775, started from Cambridge and Newburyport, to join Montgomery at Quebec, is marked in Skowhegan by an old elm tree. The Arnold expedition against the English in Canada at that time left Newburyport on a fleet of coasting craft for the Kennebec river, up which the vessels sailed to Gardiner, where several bateaux, big double-ender dory-shaped craft, were made, and on the way, against the river's flow, the outfit of some few more than 1,100 men, camped at Fort Western, on the east side of the Kennebec in Augusta, and in Waterville.

Skowhegan's Elm.

While continuing their way up river to the "Great Carrying Place," between the Kennebec and the Dead rivers, the outfit, or part of it, camped in Skowhegan, near the Norridgewock line, in that part of the town where the old elm flourishes. This historic elm is a tree of wide spread, and about 50 feet high.

The elm recalls such brave officers as Capt. Daniel Morgan, who commanded the Virginia and Pennsylvania riflemen; Henry Dearborn, Aaron Burr, who went along and remained with the 500 that crossed the divide and took the Chaudiere for the last reach to Quebec. The other part of the expedition, under Col. Enos, quit at the "Great Carrying Place," and returned with all the food supplies and medicines. Those who went through to the siege of the Plains of Abraham fight encountered intense suffering from the effects of insufficient food and lack of winter clothing.

The plaintiff in the case lives on the G. W. Baker farm one mile south of this city.

Boys Want Corn Measured

The farmer boys who have been raising a "sample" acre of corn in Fayette county to win the prize arranged by the State Board of Agriculture, are beginning to send notices to the county commissioners that they are now ready to have their acre of corn husked and measured.

Willard C. Kirk and Donald Zimmerman, of Jefferson township, made application for some one to husk and measure their acre of corn, and W. R. Edge and Frank Carr were appointed to help the boys.

INDEPENDENCE DAYS ABROAD

Many Other Nations Celebrate Time They Gained Their Freedom.

Paris, France.—Wherever there is a free country it has its day of independence, corresponding to our Fourth of July, and which is always the great festival of the year, when the people indulge in rejoicings of every imaginable kind.
In France the festival celebrates the fall of the Bastille, which marked the beginning of the revolution. The date of this event was July 14, 1789, but it was not until 1880 that the anniversary ary was made by the government authority a national holiday. In all the cities of the French republic it is commemorated by illuminations, fireworks, special theatrical performances, balls, concerts and much chanting of the Marseillaise, the greatest of all war songs.

What is called the festival of the Escalade is the independence day of the little republic of Geneva—certainly the most picturesque of all republics. It is now, of course, a part of Switzerland, but this is comparatively recent. During all the middle ages, with bloody wars raging on every hand, Geneva—a quiet little town in the Valley of the Rhone, surrounded by snow-capped mountains—held its own against every foe and retained its freedom.

But on the night of December 11, 1602, it had an exceedingly narrow escape. Large forces, secretly gathered, which had marched from several strongholds in Savoy, crossed the River Arve and began to scale the walls with ladders. There was an alarm and the citizens, springing from their beds, rushed out in scanty attire. The enemy were driven back and by noon on the following day were completely routed.

Italy, although a monarchy, has its own independence day. This falls always on the first Sunday in June and is called the festival of the constitution. It celebrates the final union of Italy, which was accomplished in 1870.

Officials Pass Over D. T. & I.

Receiver George P. Johnson of the D. T. & I. railroad, accompanied by Supt. H. E. Warner and General Freight Agent of the same road, passed through this city Friday in a special car.

The three men were southward bound to look after affairs on the southern part of the division, and also to make an inspection at various points along the road.

No mention of the new station at this point was made while the officials were in this city, and it is supposed that the building will not be erected until next spring.

Walnut Trees Bring Fortune of $27,000

Few persons realize the great value of walnut timber at this age, as walnut was so plentiful a few years ago that much furniture was made of solid walnut timber.

A few days ago 138 walnut trees, located on the Volch Weaver farm, eight miles south of Xenia, were sold to Theodore Francke & Company, of Cincinnati, for a small fortune.

The amount received by Mr. Weaver is said to have been approximately $27,000.

Thirty of the finest trees in the lot are being dug out by the roots, the Cincinnati company being determined to save every possible inch of the valuable wood. The others will be cut as close to the ground as possible. All will be cut up and used for veneering.

A gang of six men are now at work cutting the trees and preparing them for shipment. Mr. Weaver sold trees as they stood and the Lumber Company has to stand the expense of cutting and shipping them.

In order to give an idea of the value of walnut timber Mr. Weaver stated that he had been offered $500 for two of the trees in the lot and refused it.

Some of the timber is said to be the famous "bird's eye" which is so much in demand.

Rain Just What Wheat Required

The farmers are greatly pleased with the rain of Friday and Friday night as it was just what the newly sown wheat was needing most to give it a good start before the winter sets in.

As a general rule the wheat is doing exceptionally well, and will obtain a good start before the cold weather, and the rain has added materially to the ideal conditions for quick growth.

Finishing Races This Afternoon

The last day's races of the Fall Race Meet at the local fair grounds, which were postponed from Friday until Saturday on account of the rain, were resumed this afternoon with a fairly good sized crowd in attendance.

The unfinished races of Thursday, which were also carried over, were to be finished this afternoon.

At the time of going to press the races are in full swing, and proving as exciting as those of Thursday, which were so thoroughly enjoyed by the crowd present.

PROVED A MAN OF HIS WORD

Broker, True to Promise, Remembers Old Apple Woman in His Day of Rejoicing.

"Yes, I have my regular customers," said the old apple woman at a Wal street corner as she polished an apple, "and now and then I have one that lets me share in his good luck. When industrials was on the kite, along comes a broker who says:

"Good mornin' to ye, Aunt Sally and how's apples sellin' today?"

"Two for five, yer highness," says I "which is cheap for apples at this season of the year."

"That's true," says he, "and I'll take along a couple for luck. I'm in industrials to make or lose a hundred thousand. If I make, I'll remember ye."

"Good bless ye!" I says, as I give the apples an extra polish and hands them over. It was three days before I sees him ag'in. Then he stops at my stand wid a look uv benevolence or his face, and money in his hand, and says:

"Aunt Sally, yer polished apples brought me luck, and I'm a man at me word. I cleared a hundred thousand and that day."

"Gord be praised, yer worship!"

"And ye'll please accept this as a little token av love and esteem from yer true friend."

"And wid that the dear, good-hearted man hands me a nickel and walks away wid the benevolence creeping down his shirt collar. And I was so affected that a boy stole two av me biggest apples whilst the tears was in me eyes. My husband says it ought to have been a dime at least. But God bless ye, str, that broker could have sold out his business and moved to Boston and dodged me altogether, ye know."

Vienna.—A lengthy notice appears in the Official Gazette, calling upon the heirs of the late Count Franz Palffy, who died on November 14, 1852, to withdraw a deposit from the treasury of the civil court of justice which has been lying there over 30 years. The sum is one heller—one-fifth of a cent. Unless withdrawn, under Austrian custom, it will be applied to paying off the national debt.

FORGED LARGE CHECK ON BANK OF SABINA

Harry Lynch Captured at Red Key, Indiana, After Buying Automobile With Forged Check and Having Victim Drive Machine as Far as This City.

C. C. Crane, an automobile dealer of Columbus, dropped off the morning train and hurried to the sheriff's office where he asked the assistance of Sheriff Nelson in locating a young man who had swindled him out of an automobile for which a forged check for $500 had been tendered.

From here Mr. Crane went to Sabina, where he wired back that the man he wanted had been captured in Red Key, Ind., with the automobile still in his possession, and that he had given the name of Harry Lynch, a young man who has been in the Sabina neighborhood for some time.

Young Lynch went to Columbus and purchased an Overland runabout from Crane, giving a check on the Sabina bank for the sum of $500 and signing the name of U. M. Morgan, of Sabina. He also went to the Secretary of State's office and gave another check for license No. 62,191, placed it on the machine, and asked that Crane drive him as far as this city so that he could learn to operate the machine and drive it proudly into Sabina by himself.

Crane came as far as this city, left young Lynch, who had represented himself as being U. M. Morgan, and returned to Columbus. The checks went to the Sabina bank for payment, and were returned to Columbus unpaid. Crane made a hurried investigation, learned that he had been victimized for the price of the roadster, and placed the affair in the hands of the Columbus police, and by notifying adjoining cities the man was located at Red Key, just over the line in Indiana.

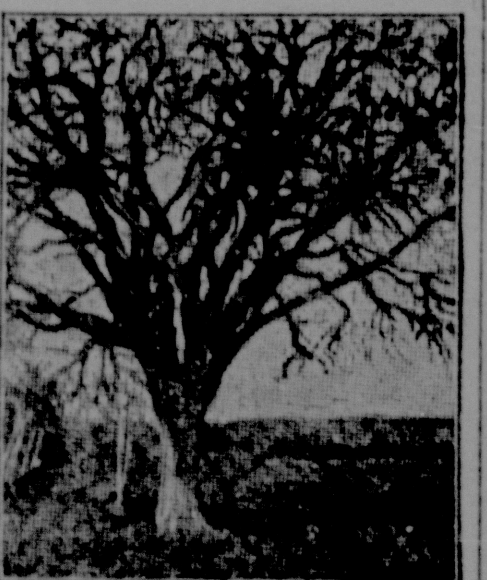

The fellow is 21 years of age, and worked things smoothly enough for a professional.

He will be brought back to Columbus to face the charge, and a term in the penitentiary stares him in the face. It is said that it is not the first time he has been in like trouble.

MARKS A MEMORABLE SPOT

Ancient Elm in Skowhegan, Me., Under Which Army of Benedict Arnold Encamped.

One of the camping places of the force under Benedict Arnold which, in September, 1775, started from Cambridge and Newburyport, to join Montgomery at Quebec, is marked in Skowhegan by an old elm tree. The Arnold expedition against the English in Canada at that time left Newburyport on a fleet of coasting craft for the Kennebec river, up which the vessels sailed to Gardiner, where several bateaux, big double-enders dory-shaped craft, were made, and on the way, against the river's flow, the outfit of some few more than 1,100 men, camped at Fort Western, on the east side of the Kennebec in Augusta, and in Waterville.

Skowhegan's Elm.

While continuing their way up river to the "Great Carrying Place," between the Kennebec and the Dead rivers, the outfit, or part of it, camped in Skowhegan, near the Norridgewock line, in that part of the town where the old elm flourishes. This historic elm is a tree of wide spread, and about 50 feet high.

The elm recalls such brave officers as Capt. Daniel Morgan, who commanded the Virginia and Pennsylvania riflemen; Henry Dearborn, Aaron Burr, who went along and remained with the 500 that crossed the divide and took the Chaudiere for the last reach to Quebec. The other part of the expedition, under Col. Enos, quit at the "Great Carrying Place," and returned with all the food supplies and medicines. Those who went through to the siege of the Plains of Abraham fight encountered intense suffering from the effects of insufficient food and lack of winter clothing.

Woman Has Man Arrested

D. Folden, living south of this city on the Chillicothe pike, was placed under arrest Friday afternoon by Cogswell, upon an affidavit filed by Sophia Jones, who accused Folden of using obscene and profane language. Upon his arrest Folden gave a cash bond of $10 for his appearance before Mayor Smith Monday morning, and was released.

The plaintiff in the case lives on the G. W. Baker farm one mile south of this city.
